BOSTON GOES DRY MAY 1

SALOONS IN CITY TO CLOSE

Don't Propose to Pay Year's License Fee for Privilege of Two Months' Business

Unless the Legislature passes a special act giving licensing boards of the Commonwealth discretionary power to issue licenses for May and June at a proportionate rate, Boston will go virtually dry next May 1, two months earlier than the rest of the country, according to Chairman Fletcher Ranney of the Licensing Board.

Only by such a special act, says Mr. Ranney, can liquor licenses be issued to cover the period between May 1 and the date set by the new prohibition bill. Licensing boards have no discretion other than to exact the whole year's fee in advance.

Mr. Ranney doubts very much whether Boston and other Massachusetts liquor dealers will pay a full year's license in order that their patrons may enjoy the privilege of buying liquor during the two months only of May and June.

The prohibition rider to the "food stimulating bill," just made law by President Wilson's signature, takes legal effect next July 1. Present liquor licenses for Boston expire May 1. That leaves but two months of business for those who care to renew their licenses on May 1. And it is not believed, considering that the pay-in-advance principles rules the State and city in their business deal-

JUMP FROM WINDOWS AT FIRE IN WALTHAM

Fire at 8:30 a. m. today in the Waltham Screw Company plant, Rumford street, Waltham, caused dozens of workmen to jump from windows or flee in their working clothes. Two alarms brought all Waltham's fire department and help from Waltham. The fire started in the north end of the building, destroying the men's locker-rooms and much stock. Sprinklers checked the flames while the fire department was making a long run to the scene. Manager D. F. Viles was unable to estimate the damage.

There was no formal exoneration of the Wisconsin Senator, but the committee voted 9 to 2 to discontinue proceedings in the case.

HENRY FORD HAS QUIT MAKING AUTOS

Detroit, Nov. 22.—Henry Ford is going to publish a weekly national newspaper. He will retire from active participation in the management of the Ford Motor Company, in which his son, Edsel, will take his place, and will divide his time between his newspaper and the Ford tractor.

Mr. Ford recently purchased the Dearborn Independent, published in his home town, and has plans well under way for making a national weekly.

"I am very much interested in the future, not only of my own country but of the whole world," said Mr. Ford, "and I have definite ideas and ideals that I believe are practical for the good of all and intend giving them to the public without having them garbled, distorted or misrepresented."

Paris, Nov. 22.—King George and Queen Mary of England are expected to arrive in Paris on November 29. The executive committee of the Municipal Council is arranging an important program of festivities.

President Wilson's official entry into the city is expected in the second week of December. At a reception at the Hotel de Ville the American President will be presented with a gold medal bearing an inscription expressing the gratitude of Paris to "The sister republic and to her chief."

President Wilson's entourage may be housed in portable barracks in the Tuilleries public square during the peace conferences, owing to the congested condition of the hotels.

Bonfires Started by Children in Belgium Blow Up German Ammunition Trains

By International News Service.

London, Nov. 22.—Between 1,500 and 2,000 persons were killed or wounded in a great explosion caused by the blowing up of two German ammunition trains near Hamont on Monday night, said a Central News dispatch from Amsterdam today. The Dutch military authorities assisted in the rescue work. The explosions were caused by bonfires set by children.

DEMOBILIZATION BEGINS AT AYER CAMP

Uncle Sam is demobilizing his army in this country.

The first batch of men honorably discharged from Camp Devens started home today, 200 of them.

One thousand more were ordered to physical examination at Camp Devens today, as first step toward discharge. Uncle Sam requires that a man in cantonment shall be in as good physical shape, when discharged and sent home, as he was when he arrived in camp. If he has run down any he must build up before the army lets him go.

Selective draft men at Camp Dix, N. J., are likewise being called for discharge examinations.

Men in the "limited service" class are the first to be mustered out.

The two hundred men who started home today from Camp Devens were selected from Company A, First Development Battalion. They were examined yesterday. All that remained today was for them to receive their discharges, pay and transportation from the personnel department.

Demobilization is to be rapid, judging by the extensive preparations. A batch of 25,000 honorable discharge forms is in the hands of the personnel department. Another batch of the same size is coming.

Two thousand of these forms have been sent to the Depot Brigade and Development Battalion.

The men at Devens are holding company celebrations on the company funds that have accumulated.

CHRISTMAS BALL ENLISTS STARS OF 'SEVENTEEN'

Billy Baxter, wearing papa's dress suit and straight from the last act of "Seventeen," playing at the Plymouth Theatre, will appear at Symphony Hall on the night of December 4, at the monster ball and frolic which the theatrical people of Boston are going to give for the benefit of the Boston AMERICAN'S Christmas Basket Fund, and will offer a challenge to the young women of Boston.

To the lady who will pay the highest price for the privilege, "Billy Baxter," who is Gregory Kelly in truth, will dance one waltz or such other number as the lady may select. Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald will act as auctioneer.

Here is a chance for Boston femininity to have the double privilege of dancing with one of the best known young men stars in the country and of contributing to the Christmas Basket Fund, which is destined to carry cheer into poor homes on Christmas Day.

Don't miss this chance.

And don't miss this one, either: Ruth Gordon, who is Lola Pratt in "Seventeen" (nobody will ever for-

Wilson Felicitates Albert on Entry Into Brussels

By International News Service.

Washington, Nov. 22.—President Wilson this afternoon sent to King Albert of Belgium, a telegram felicitating the Belgian ruler on the re-entry of the royal family today into Brussels, occupied since the first days of the war by German armies. The telegram follows:

"At the moment that you reenter Brussels at the head of your victorious army, may I not express the great joy that it gives to me and to the American people to hail your return to your capital, marking your final triumph in this war which cost your nation so much suffering, but from which it will arise in new strength to a higher destiny.

DUTCH DEMAND FOR EXPULSION OF KAISER

London, Nov. 22—(By British Wireless Press).—In dealing with the situation brought about by the ex-Kaiser and the former Crown Prince on Dutch soil, the Tiegraaf of Amsterdam and other Dutch journals suggest that they be expelled, said dispatches from Amsterdam today.

Other Holland papers take a more moderate view of the subject, while admitting that it might be getting Holland into trouble for the Hohenzollerns to remain there. Nieuwe Van den Dag published an article which reflects the uneasiness prevailing in various Dutch circles over the presence of the former ruling family of Germany.

"For the present perhaps there is no danger of a plot on our soil against Germany's new democracy," said this paper, "but who can say when this danger might not be realized if our 'guests' do not depart speedily."

The former Kaiser has been taken suddenly and seriously ill, according to an Amsterdam dispatch to the London Express.

He is said to be suffering from influenza.

The former Emperor's suite, including Admiral Count von Platen, returned to Germany by way of Odenzaal Sunday, according to the Amsterdam Handelsblad.

'REDS' LEAD REVOLT IN HAMBURG AND KIEL

London, Nov. 22 (1:50 P. M.).—A new revolution has broken out at Kiel, Hamburg and other German ports, said an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen this afternoon. The counter-revolutionaries are attempting to put radicals in control of the government.

The Boleshevik Reds of the German Liberals are now struggling to get control of the German government and wrest the reins of power from the hands of Dr. Frederick Ebert and his Moderate colleagues.

The new counter-revolution reported from Kiel, Hamburg and other German ports gives the German uprising a closer parallel to the Russian revolt than at any previous time. Just as the Moderates were overthrown by the Radicals at Petrograd, so the Radicals in Germany are now attempting to put their representatives in power.

The Bolshevik spirit has spread into Germany, but its hold upon the population is apparently not yet nation-wide.

German Troops Loot Own Towns and Seize Trains in Panic to Return Home

London, Nov. 22.—While the victorious allies are marching toward the Rhine from the west and south the German government is reported to be hurrying trustworthy regiments to the river from the north in an attempt to stem the ever-increasing tide of demoralized soldiers who are sweeping on ahead of the allied advance, to the various bridges over the river.

Government troops have been beaten back from Rhine bridges by hordes of hungry, wild-eyed soldiers, who have seized trains, and regardless of railroad time schedules, have compelled locomotive and train crews to take them in the direction of Berlin.

Stories of pilaging on a large scale are coming from the towns and villages of Rhenish Prussia.

So desperate are the attempts made by thousands of fleeing soldiers to get to points well north and east of the Rhine that, it is said, hundreds are losing their lives in fights for places on trains and by falling from the roofs of overcrowded cars.

FRANCO-BRITISH ARMY ON WAY TO KIEV

Paris, Nov. 22.—French and British troops, believed to have been withdrawn from the allied forces at Salonica, have been landed at a Russian Black Sea port and are marching on Kiev, according to a dispatch received here today from Swiss sources.

The entente troops are believed to be going to the support of the new anti-Bolshevik government set up at Kiev, which has taken over the direction of affairs in the Ukraine.

U.S.BATTLESHIPS IN 'VICTORY LINE' AS 71 GERMAN SHIPS SURRENDERED

World's Greatest Naval Spectacle Takes Place Off the Coast of Scotland.

By D. M. EDWARDS,

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Aboard the U. S. S. Wyoming at Sea, Nov. 21—(9 p. m.)—The surrender of the German fleet of seventy-one vessels was carried out with the precision of clockwork and there was not the slightest untoward incident to cause any excitement.

While the Germans were giving themselves up fifty miles out in the North Sea, dirigible balloons and airplanes drifted through the sky overhead. Of the seventy-one German vessels fourteen were heavy ships, seven light cruisers and fifty destroyers.

ALL AT BATTLE STATION.

The Germans sailed right into the open arms of the British, American and French fleet with guns trained fore and aft, but without any ammunition in them. The men o' war were decked out with German flags, but there was no fight left in them.

Every battle flag on the allied fleet was flying and each man was at his battle station. Every turret was ready to open fire and every range finder was giving the exact line of the approaching German ships.

The transfer of the ships was carried out without noise or confusion.

The allied fleet, commanded by Admiral Sir David Beatty, of the British grand fleet, was composed almost entirely of British ships with the American Sixth Battleship Squadron and a French ship. The fleet sailed from the Firth of Forth at 2 o'clock this morning for the rendezvous.

The destroyers departed last night, moving by the score. The fleet then departed. It steamed northward and then turned east in double columns six miles apart. The northern column flew red burgees, the southern column flew blue.

FIVE BIG U. S. BATTLESHIPS.

Leading the fleet was the British ship Cardiff. The American battleship squadron had the fifth place in the northern line. It consisted of the New York, the Texas, Arkansas, Wyoming and Florida. It followed in the wake of the fifth British battleship squadron, composed of Barham, Malay, Valiant and the Warspite, which took part in the famous battle of Jutland.

On the New York, which is the flagship of Captain Beach, were Admirals Sims and Hugh Rodman.

Following the American squadron came the British second battle squadron, made up of ships of the Thunderer type, and just preceding the Queen Elizabeth, upon which was Admiral Beatty.

Just back of Admiral Beatty's flagship came the great battle cruisers Lion, Princes Royal, Tiger, Repulse and Renown.

The southern, or "blue" column, was led by the third light cruiser squadron with vessels of the Chatham type; then the Vindictive and Minotaur. Next came two more battle squadrons followed by a battle cruiser squadron, made up of the Australia, New Zealand, Indomitable and Inflexible.

Starting out in a haze the allied ships reached the rendezvous a little ahead of the schedule, so swung around in a circle waiting for the Germans to come up.

GERMANS ARE SIGHTED.

Suddenly a young officer, who had been peering intently to sea, exclaimed to the commander of his ship:

"Unknown ship bearing off the starboard now, sir."

"That must be part of the German fleet," replied the commander.

Soon a big, gray smoking ship came up from the east through the haze, and it turned out to be the leading battleship of the surrendering fleet.

It bore the flag of Rear Admiral von Reuter, commander of the whole German force. In a long column the German vessels passed between the two lines of allied ships.

In the German fleet were the Frederick the Great, the King Albert, Kaiser, Crown Prince William, Kaiserin, Bayern, Margraf, Prince Regent Luitpold and the Grosser Kurfuerst in the first detachment. They looked docile enough, although they seemed to be hugging each other closely.

MANY WERE NEW SHIPS.

Then came the battle cruisers Seydlitz, flying the broad pennant of Commodore Tagert; Von der Tann, Moltke, Hindenburg and the Derfflinger.

These last two ships were great vessels, nearly 700 feet long with the smoke pouring from their huge funnels. They looked as formidable as anything in the allied fleet.

Half a mile back of the battle cruiser squadron came the light cruiser Karlsruhe flying the pennant of Commodore Harden; the Frankfort, Emden, Nurnberg, Brummer, Coln and Bremen. Practically all of the light cruisers appeared to be new ships.

Some of the captive German ships like the Emden replaced others that had been sunk since the beginning of the war.

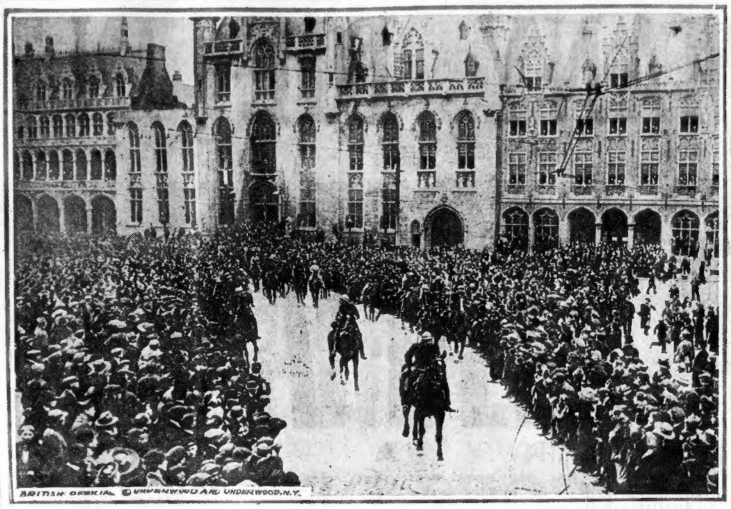
BELGIUM'S KING AND QUEEN ENTER BRUSSELS IN TRIUMPH



BRITISH OFFICIAL © UNDERWOOD AND UNDERWOOD, N.Y.

The Belgian royal couple is seen in the centre of the picture, vociferously acclaimed by the people on their entry a few days ago into Bruges, which has been liberated after four years of occupation.

Paris, Nov. 22. — King Albert of Belgium, Queen Elizabeth, Prince Charles and Princess Marie Jose entered Brussels this morning amidst a mighty ovation from the civilian population and the Belgian troops.

The royal party made an impressive entry and were triumphantly acclaimed. King Albert rode at the head of a Belgian division of the allied army.

British cavalry crossed the historic plan of Waterloo yesterday and an advance guard of Belgian soldiers entered Brussels.

The capital city is profusely decorated with flags in honor of the reception of the King and Queen. Civilians are delirious with joy.

Belgian soldiers that entered Brussels were literally covered with flags and flowers. It was one of the most wonderful sights in the history of the country.

Cardinal Mercier, famous Belgian prelate, who defied the German military authorities, gave out a remarkable interview upon the deliverance of his country. The cardinal radiated happiness. He said he had never lost hope, although at times his heart was very much troubled. The cardinal, after recalling his arrest in 1914, when he was not allowed to leave his home for two days, inquired after Cardinal Gibbons, whom he called a "grand old man and a noble figure."

The prelate was deeply shocked to learn of the death of Cardinal Farley in New York. It was the first time he had heard of it.

The Cardinal praised the British, French and American soldiers, calling them the saviors of civilization. He was particularly anxious to know all about the tanks. When told they had won the war the churchman said: "Yes, and also the fact that the allies had right on their side."

President May Start Voyage to Europe on Fourth of December

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN,

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Nov. 22.—Complete arrangements for President Wilson's trip abroad are ready for announcement. All details have been fixed and the official program now is before him for his approval. He will leave Washington about December 4 and go directly to New York, where the big liner Agamemnon, formerly the Kaiser Wilhelm II., will be waiting for him.

This big vessel has ben newly fitted up for the trip, her interior finishings, removed when the steamer was diverted to transport work, having been reinstalled. It is expected here that the complete program for the President's moves will be announced at the same time that the personnel of the American delegation to the peace conference is made public. The President on the trip will occupy the imperial suite on the Agamemnon, which was originally fitted up for the former German Emperor.

Meanwhile officials expect that the President's message to be delivered at the opening of the short session of Congress will clear up some of the obscure questions involved in his trip abroad. Congress will meet on December 2, but it is not expected the President will address it until December 3 at noon. He has not yet begun work on his address, so that it is unlikely it will be available until he actually commences to speak.

In connection with the President's trip officials in his confidence today said that one of his most important utterances on the subject of the organization of a league of nations, the biggest task before the peace conference, seems to have been overlooked. This was his first announcement of his belief in the necessity of such a league, made at the first annual assemblage of the League to Enforce Peace, on May 27, 1916.

His statements made at that time are extremely significant in view of the admission that it is because of opposition to the league plan that he has found it necessary to make the trip across.

After reviewing the reasons why every people should have a right to choose the sovereignty under which they shall live; that small states had the right to have their sovereignty respected and that the world has a right to be free from every disturbance of its peace that has its origin in aggression and disregard of the rights of people and nations, the President said:

"So sincerely do we believe in these things that I am sure that I speak the mind and wish of the people of America when I say that the United States is willing to become a partner in any feasible association of nations formed in order to realize these objects and make them secure against violation. There is nothing that the United States wants for itself that any other nation has. We are willing, on the contrary, to limit ourselves along with them to a prescribed course of duty and respect for the rights of others which will check any selfish passion of our own, as it will check any aggressive impulse of theirs.

"If it ever should be our privilege to suggest or initiate a movement for peace I am sure that the people of the United States would wish to have their government move along these lines:

"First, such a settlement with regard to their own immediate interests as the belligerents may agree upon.

"Second, a universal association of the nations to maintain the inviolate security of the highway of the seas for the common and unhindered use of all of the nations of the world, and to prevent any war being begun either contrary to treaty covenants or without warning and full submission of the causes to the opinion of the world—a virtual guarantee of territorial integrity and political independence."

Officials declared today that this declaration is fully as significant today as it was when it was first delivered.

MAY CLOSE ALL SALOONS ON MAY 1

ings with the liquor trade, that many licensees will seek renewal.

ENOUGH TO LAST A YEAR.

There is said to be enough whiskey and other "hard stuff" in bond here to last for another year, at least. The beer supply will probably not last more than three months. But the supplies are probably sufficient to keep the Boston liquor places going during the rest of the "wet" regime.

Prominent liquor men, however, emphasize the fact that the annual renewal of licenses comes only two months before these same licenses become valueless. They do not know of any legal machinery now existing whereby two-months' licenses may issue. That means, they say, that places may be expected to close down from now on, as stocks run low and prices soar higher. Many predict that when April 30 comes there will be comparatively few places not already closed.

"A few months of prohibition will be enough to cure the people of the prohibition idea," declared Howard Noble, secretary of the Brewers' Association of Massachusetts. "Legislation was blackjacked. There is no rhyme nor reason to the law. Increase in destructive drunkenness, in the use of dope and in corruption of those empowered to enforce the law will show the people that prohibition is not a matter for legislation."

MEANS PERMANENT PROHIBITION.

On the other hand, the Rev. Emory W. Hunt of Newton, president of the Anti-Saloon League, "thanked God" that the law had finally passed. "It dethrones Germany in this country," he said. "Investigation by Congress showed pretty clearly the connection between the liquor business and German elements within our nation."

Whiskey prices will drop, in the opinion of Edward P. Duffy of New Bedford, president of the Massachusetts Liquor League. He bases his opinion on the fact that there is a large supply of spirit liquors on hand and that they cannot be used up, on the basis of ordinary sales, before July 1.

Mrs. Ada B. Frisbee, secretary of the Massachusetts Woman's Christian Temperance Union, said that President Wilson has "signed the greatest law passed in a century." She expects permanent national prohibition to come this Winter through constitutional amendment.

SHAW REJOICES.

William Shaw, who in 1915 polled a record vote of nearly 20,000 as the Prohibition candidate for Governor, is "rejoicing in a well-won victory," which he believes will mean permanent prohibition within a very short time.

"I believe that the constitutional prohibition amendment will be passed by the first of April," Mr. Shaw says. "This law gives the liquor dealers notice to quit. I do not anticipate any trouble in the enforcement of prohibition, now that it becomes a national matter. Massachusetts will benefit, I think, probably more than any other State; for the State is a great industrial community, and such invariably benefit more from prohibition than communities of other kinds."

FRENCH ARE BUILDING 4-MOTOR PLANES FOR FLIGHT ACROSS OCEAN

PRIZE OF $10,000 HOLDS

By International News Service.

Paris, Nov. 22.—The Bleriot-Farman airplane factory has begun building four-motor airplanes for flights across the Atlantic, it was stated today.

The transatlantic airplane flight is regarded as on the eve of accomplishment. The Aero Club of America has a standing offer of a $10,000 prize to the first aviator turning the transatlantic trick. The prize will be paid from money left to the club by Samuel H. Valentine for this specified purpose.

Routes have long been under discussion. The three most favored are:

1. New York to Ireland, non-stop flight, 2,950 miles.
2. Newfoundland to Ireland, non-stop flight, 1,940 miles.
3. Newfoundland to Azores to Lisbon, Spain to Plymouth, England, two-stop flight, 3,012 miles. (Longest leg, Newfoundland to Azores, 1,232 miles.)

A more fanciful route also suggested is the Arctic one from New York to London. This includes seven stops and a total flight of 4,160 miles. The stops would be: Boston, Halifax, St. John's, N. F.; Julianshaab, Greenland; Reykjavik, Iceland; Faroe Islands and Orkney Islands. The longest jump would be 900 miles, from Newfoundland to Greenland.

HINT AT SECRET FLIGHT IN WAR.

The most practicable of the three chief routes suggested would seem to be the two-stop one from Newfoundland to the Azores, thence to Lisbon and north to England. The longest flight in that route, the 1,232 miles from Newfoundland to Corvo Island, Azores, could surely be made by the powerful machine now possible.

A Paris dispatch of last Wednesday quoted British aviators as asserting that the Atlantic had actually been crossed by airplanes of the Handley-Page type over the Newfoundland to Ireland route of 1,940 miles. The British flyers said that this performance had been kept secret during the war. No official confirmation has been forthcoming.

It was stated last July that Handley-Page designers had constructed a machine at Elizabeth, N. J., in preparation for a transatlantic flight.

The Handley-Page machines, the Capronis of Italian make, the Russian Sidoskys and our own Curtiss type of flyers have been brought to such development of engine power, wing-spread and sustained flight that no doubt is entertained but what they could negotiate at least a two-stop flight along the Azores route or probably the Newfoundland-Ireland non-stop run of 1,940 miles.

LONG DISTANCE RECORDS.

What are the long-distance aviation records? For the past four years, or since the war began, the International Aeronautical Federation has not recognized officially any civilian flights. The military airplane cross-country records for 1917 were as follows:

Captain L. Laureati, 920 miles, 10h. 33m.: Turin to Naples to Turin; non-stop world record.

Captain G. Laureati, 700 miles, 12h. 2m.: Turin to London; crossed Alps, one passenger.

Captain A. Silvio, 330 miles, 4h. 25m.: Norfolk, Va., to Mineola, L. I.; eight passengers, American record.

Lieutenant A. Baldini, 330 miles, 2h. 55m.: Norfolk, Va., to Mineola, L. I.

In June, 1916, Lieutenant Antoine Marchal, one of the crack flyers of the French army, achieved a non-stop flight of 807 miles from Nancy, France, to Cholm, in Russian Poland.

DAY-AND-A-HALF TRIP.

It is reported that an Italian aviator made a non-stop flight of 1,000 miles, but that is not a matter of official record.

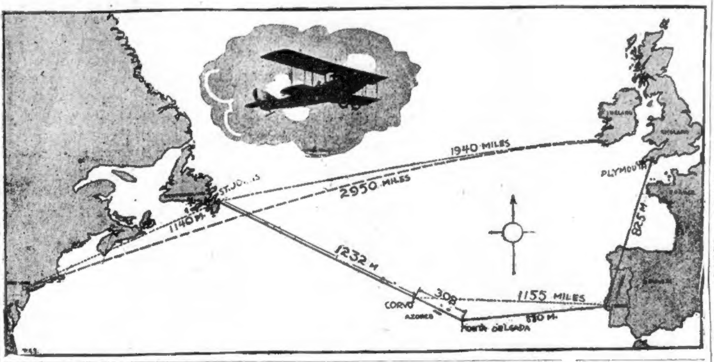
A continuous flight for 24 hours and 12 minutes is said to have been made by a German flyer. At an average speed of only 50 miles an hour—which would be a joke to the big Handley-Pages, Capronis or Bleriot-Farmans of latest type—this would be a non-stop distance of 1,210 miles, or only 22 miles less than the run from Newfoundland to Corvo, Azores.

A non-stop flight from Dayton, O., to Washington, about 430 miles, was made on October 3 by Caleb Bragg, civilian pilot of the Bureau of Aircraft Production, accompanied by an engineer officer. They used a de Haviland 9, equipped with a Liberty motor. They sped at the rate of 143 miles an hour.

Last June Major-General Branker, chief controller of equipment for the British air forces, prophesied that transatlantic trips would be tried this Fall by American-built bombing planes equipped with English Rolls-Royce engines. The idea was to ease the eastward shipping load by sending our machines across under their own power. The armistice, however, made this unnecessary from a military standpoint.

Handley Page, the English airplane constructor, said in London last Saturday that transatlantic flying would eventually put America within one and one-half day's reach of England.

ROUTES SUGGESTED FOR AERIAL FLIGHT TO EUROPE



SLEEPING PORCH IN "LITERARY" DIVORCE CASE

A moonlight night, a sleeping porch at an Atlantic City villa, a man and woman in scanty attire, the man married, the woman a famous author—both well-known in Boston literary circles—that was the picture drawn by witnesses in the Pratt divorce trial in the New York Supreme Court.

The man, Albert Houghton Pratt, nephew of Albert F. Houghton, vice-president of the publishing firm of Houghton, Mifflin Company, No. 4 Park street. The woman, Mrs. P. Mildred Parma, author of "My Tussle with the Devil by O. Henry's Ghost." Mrs. Pratt is suing the former partner in the publishing firm for divorce.

Mr. Pratt and Mrs. Parma made general denial of all charges of improper conduct.

Mrs. Parma did admit, however, that during the Summer of 1917 Mr. Pratt was an occupant of a part of the Atlantic City villa, whose sleeping porch figured in the testimony. Witnesses declared that he and Mrs. Parma were seen on the porch in scanty attire one moonlight night in the Summer of 1917.

Mrs. Parma explained that she chose that particular villa because she was writing a new story and wished to surround herself with the proper atmosphere. Mrs. Parma is a widow.

Albert F. Houghton, the publisher, uncle of Mr. Pratt, the defendant, testified as to money dealings with his nephew.

He said that until January, 1917, his nephew was a stockholder as well as one of the editors of the publishing firm. After his nephew had severed his connection with the editorial staff Mr. Pratt asked his uncle to take over a block of stock of the firm, which he had already pledged for a loan of $25,000.

"I told him," Mr. Houghton continued, "that I would give him a check to cover the amount of the loan from the outsider and take the stock as security for other loans I had made him, amounting to $18,000."

Later Mr. Pratt received from his uncle a check for several thousands, the difference between Mr. Houghton's check and the balance on a note due to the holder of the pledged stock.

To the question, "what did you do with the difference?" Mr. Pratt answered the plaintiff's counsel that he ahd turned the balance over to Mrs. Parma.

It was at this point that Mr. Pratt entered a general denial of all his wife's charges and asserted that there was nothing improper in his friendship for Mrs. Parma.

CONFERENCE ON HOLYOKE TROLLEY CASE MONDAY

A conference between the management and the employes of the Holyoke Street Railway will be held Monday at the State House and Henry B. Endicott has consented to settle the dispute between them. On November 9 the employes struck, but through the efforts of Charles G. Wood, of the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration, they returned to work after five days, during which transportation was paralyzed.

FORE RIVER WORKMAN SHOT DURING DISPUTE

Frank Bellvo, thirty-six, a foreman in a paint shop at the Fore River yards, was shot in the abdomen in a quarrel with three other men at Sea and Canal streets, Quincy. Bellvo lives at No. 19 Canal street. Patrolman Canavan, who heard the shot, noticed three men walking away. The police believe that they were employed in the same shop as Bellyo. Bellvo was removed to the City Hospital. His condition is not serious.

TO DECIDE ON GERMANY'S FUTURE GOVERNMENT

London, Nov. 22.—Representatives of the German free states will be summoned to a conference at the home of Chancellor Ebert in Berlin on November 25 to determine the future federal administration of the country, said a news agency dispatch from Berlin today.

Women Should Register for School Election

By ALICE STONE BLACKWELL.

Boston women can register to vote for school committee from now till November 27, inclusive, at the place of registration in their own wards, from 6 to 10 P. M. This is the last opportunity.

The overshadowing interest of the great events taking place abroad should not make us forget our small duties at home, and one of these is the duty to secure the best school committee that we can for our own city.

Barkeep Sadly Sighs and Dries His Eyes With Wet Towel

Speaking of cocktails and bracers and such,
Knowing their make-up ain't getting me much,
It's me for a school and a guy that'll teach
How to make a man happy with milk and a peach.
—From the Lament of the Wine Clerk.

There was a sad and faraway look in the eyes of Joseph J. Mixer today. There was lacking the fascinating twist of his fingers as he held the lemon peel over the little glass on the bar. Missing were the deft flip and the tiny wake of sparkling drops as he slid the inevitable chaser toward the tired business man.

Joseph J.—some five thousand of him—has come upon hard times.

"Sherman said something," he agreed with the stout individual, who learned the sad news last night, and immediately started an alcoholic marathon scheduled to end at midnight on June 30, 1919.

"For years and years," he continued, "I have seen the pallor of post celebration wiped off the clammy brow of regular Americans, for years and years I have seen joy and happiness sunburst through the gloom and sorrow on countless faces.

"And now it must end. For years and years—but ah, well what's the use. The deed has been done. No more the gang will meet after work to plan new empires. No more will the jovial salesman ply with tasty beverages his reluctant customer to acquiescence.

"No more will Hon, after he has a couple, admit that he was all to blame in the fight they had last night, and cal up Dearie and tell her so. The Great American arbitrator of love and business and everything else has been done to death.

"You can tell the world it's a sad blow.

"It isn't the jobs we're losing that we mind. We can get others, but they wil not have the same associations. Who can imagine anybody standing at a soda fountin until its time to close up, telling you stories nd slipping you cigars every ten minutes? Nobody.

"Who can imagine a press agent coming along and sliping you tickets for his show, while immersed in the dubious joys of a walnut sundae or something like that?

"You can tel the world it's a sad, sad blow."

And Joseph J. Mixer carelessly rubbed a wet towel across his eyes and forgot to hand back any change.

It was reported at the 1,000 places where gloom reigned today that the famous Hott twins, Tom and Jerry, had been stricken with influenza, and while they might pull through the Winter would never last the Summer out.

It was also reported that fourteen breweries will be shut down, more than 10,000 workers thrown out of jobs, and revenue of upward of $1,000,000 lost to the city of Boston.

The big rush on the wholesale houses started right in. The jolly souls who like their liquor strong, as Tad says, and have the price are laying in against the big drouth.

But there's no sunshine in the future for Joseph J. Mixer and his regular patrons.

MOTHER GETS CHILDREN AS 'DAD' WORKS

Mrs. Teresa Healey of Cleveland put in a quick morning's work in Boston and Somerville today.

She arrived at the South Station from Cleveland on the trail of her husband and her two little boys, hurried to Somerville, showed court records to Police Chief Kendall, recovered her boys and started back with them to Cleveland.

She left a big surprise ready for her husband, when he returned to No. 74 Grant street—where he had been staying with a relative—to find the boys gone.

Mrs. Healey exhibited to Chief Kendall Cleveland court papers to show that her husband, Martin Healey, had been in court early this month on a charge of non-support and that he had been ordered to pay his wife $16 a week for herself and $8 a week more to support the boys, who are eight and three years old, and who had been put in the custody of the mother.

She told the chief that on November 10 Healey took the children from her home while she was away and departed for Somerville. She gave the Grant street address of the husband's relatives. Lieutenants Damery and Kennedy accompanied the mother to the house, where the boys were found. The "kiddies" hugged and kised their mother again and again.

The father was not in sight. He had left the house to go to work. Mrs. Healey did not promise to wait for him to return.

The boys and their clothes were made ready for travel. The mother started back with them to Cleveland, stopping in to thank Chief Kendall.

He speaks French fluently, and was one of the delegates who attended the first Hague conference in 1899.

DANGER OF COAL FAMINE IS SLIGHT

Washington, Nov. 22.—There will be no dearth of coal this Winter, in the opinion of the railroad administration.

In a report issued today on railroad operations for the month of October, 1918, Hale Holden, director of railroads for the Central Western region, says that the coal outlook for the coming Winter is better than at any time since 1915; that the country is stocked with a greater supply of coal than ever known before; that the mines are producing more than ever before in their history and that the railway administration is confident that there will be no lack of fuel through failure of transportation.

Holden reports that production of coal in many of the Central Western States has surpassed consumption, making it necessary to withdraw bituminous coal restrictions for non-essential or non-preferential uses, including even country clubs.

Yankee Casualties at the Front Will Total 105,000

Washington, Nov. 22.—Close estimates made in official quarters indicate that total casualties in the American army in foreign service up to the day hostilities ceased were about 105,000.

It is understood that there are about 10,000 casualties details of which have not been received.

It is certain that the last battles in which the Americans were engaged, and especially those by which Pershing's forces crossed the upper reaches of the Meuse, were desperate engagements in which the American losses were heavy. The fighting is said to have been more intense than that in which the Marines of the First Division participated in the first attacks of the allies near Chateau-Thierry.

TO CLEAN CITY OF VICE, SAYS CROWLEY

Police After Idle, Disorderly and Immoral, Declares Police Superintendent

Superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley said today with reference to District Attorney Pelletier's statement urging all citizens to help him in the crusade now being waged against vice, that he was very glad to hear that the courts are to back up the police.

He said the police have not let down one bit in their efforts to rid the city of vice and that they will continue to be as rigid as ever in the exercise of their duties.

"We are still after the idle, disorderly and other immoral persons," he said, "and will do our best to clean up the city."

District Attorney Pelletier's statement urged all citizens to assist him and Major Wright in the vigorous crusade now being waged against vice.

Mr. Pelletier called attention to the appalling condition of young girls found in the streets of Boston and on the Common and Public Garden, and the consequent danger to the young men in the uniform of the United States.

Of 170 girls found on the Common alone, 108 were afflicted with a loathsome disease.

Mr. Pelletier's statement is as follows:

"Although an armistice has been signed, the war is still on. The War Department is still active, through Major W. B. Wright, Jr., in safeguarding the soldiers and sailors from the moral dangers and physical hazards which surround them.

"The extent of disease among women of the street is appalling. Out of 170 disorderly young women found about Boston Common, 108 were diseased.

"I want to ask the lawyers and the public generally to help me, help Major Wright and the War Department in their effort to save the boys in uniform.

"No quarter will be given to street walkers and idle and disorderly women. They must stand trial and take a prison sentence. As to 'bootleggers,' itinerant pedlers of rotten booze to the boys, no leniency will be shown.

"These creatures, who would ruin the morale and wreck the bodies of our fighting boys, ought to be in prison.

"Fathers and mothers! As you value the lives and virtue of your daughters, keep them off the streets at night! I know what our policy in this matter is in accord with the desire of the fathers and mothers, wives, brothers and sisters and of the boys themselves.

"I shall do my share. With the public backing up the police, our city will sustain its reputation for decency and morality."

ITALIANS PARADE IN SOUTH BOSTON SUNDAY

Arrangements have been completed by the Italian colony of South Boston for a big victory parade next Sunday afternoon through the streets of that district, carrying many attractive and interesting features in celebration of peace and the part that Italy took in the gigantic struggle. The parade will start at 2 p. m. from the M-street playground and there will be addresses by Mayor Peters, Congressman James A. Gallivan and others.

Send "Smiles" Tomorrow From Roslindale

Although again forced to another postponement, owing to bad weather, the residents of Brookline, Brighton and Allston will have their chance today to get into the big Boston AMERICAN serial of "Smiles Across the Sea." Promptly at 2 o'clock the camera man will be ready at Allston playground, Allston street, to take all of the friends and relatives of the boys in khaki from these sections.

There will be plenty of opportunity for everyone, as the usual parade feature of all will be taken first, followed by closeup of war brides, babies, etc., etc., giving everyone a chance to get in the movie.

On Saturday the final instalment of the picture will be taken at the Washington street playground, Roslindale. This film will end the series, so that the pictures which have been taken during the past month of relatives and friends of the soldiers of Greater Boston can be reproduced next month to the boys over there.

The Saturday film will be for those residing in Roslindale, Jamaica Plain, Hyde Park and West Roxbury. As this is the final curtain, everyone must be present at the big playground if they wish to be filmed in the "Smiles" series.

In event of rain the films will be taken on the following day.

Wilson Phones to Men in Air by Wireless

By International News Service.

Washington, Nov. 22.—President Wilson this afternoon talked through a wireless telephone with a squardon of six airplanes flying thousands of feet over Washington.

Standing on the lawn of the White House, the President directed the aviators through many and varied gyrations. The President used a transmitter in speaking, his voice being immediately caught up by the apparatus on the airplanes.

The invention of the airplane wireless telephone was announced here several days ago, the signing of the armistice lessening the necessity of secrecy. The invention had been in operation for six months on the western front. It is declared to be one of the greatest inventions of the war.

ATTACKS PLAN TO PUT U. S. IN LEAGUE

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES.

Washington, Nov. 22.—Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, in a powerful and logical speech in the Senate, argued against the President's central mission in behalf of a league of nations, and the freedom of the seas.

Both of these great ideas Senator Reed pronounced impractical and impossible.

Senator Reed said universal and perpetual peace was a beautiful but iridescent dream. He declared:

"Wars always have been and always will be until the actual millineum changes the Devil for a thousand years."

The League of Nations he proclaimed a failure, full of weakness and full of danger, as Washington stated in his counsel against entangling alliances.

A court of arbitration, Senator Reed said, would have no binding value unless it had physical power to enforce its decisions.

Who would compose that court, and whence and of what numerical strength would be the army that would make its decisions stand against the great powers that might see fit in their selfishness or anger to defy them?

So far as the United States was concerned, the Court of Arbitration would be packed in advance by a great majority of nations of different spirit, temper, institutions and often of antagonistic interests and policies—jealous, perhaps, of a commercial success or dominating influence.

Taking Great Britain as an example, the Senator showed where one month ago the English royal house was bound by ties of blood to every monarchy and nation in Europe, from Norway and Sweden and Rumania and Austria, and especially close in blood to the Hohenzollerns.

He challenged broadly the sincerity and continuous improbability of such a court, and cited the history of international tribunals to sustain his contention. He said:

"Who is to furnish the force and what force would be necessary to sustain the decisions of such a tribunal?

"This means easily an army of millions under arms and a prodigious police fleet on the seas and the continued loyalty and impartiality of the fleet.

"England will never concede the absolute freedom of the seas. England could not afford it. England's navy is her life, commercially and in national defence. Stripped of her fleet, the tight little isle could be stormed to death in six weeks by any first class power, and England knows it."

'Twas a Wild Night in Staid, Old Somerville

It was a wild night—for Somerville.

About 11 o'clock, or thereabouts, Marcus J. Gray of No. 31 Walter street, telephoned police headquarters:

"Just heard three revolver shots—a woman's scream—then a fourth shot—then silence."

Lieutenant James Harmon sent Patrolmen Keniry and Hawes in the police touring car.

They found the "shots" were back-firing from an automobile. The scream was credited to some startled woman, possibly in the car.

Early morn came. "Ting-a-ling" again on the police phone. It was a man at Wesley Park:

"Mighty funny noise outside my house. Better look it up."

Out with the car again. Honk, honk to Wesley Park.

They found—and this is on the level—That the "funny noise" was water dripping on a tin roof.

Such is life in Somerville.

—and as to why the Fur Business should be saturated with Ideals

"TRICKS in every trade" must have been like Topsy, "jes' grewed" in the fur business. There were never more fertile acres for man's ingenuity for deception than in this trade, which calls loudly for uprightness and fair play. The reason is that the mind of the average "furrier," as he calls himself, is not maliciously false in his average transaction. But, so far as we know, it has never yet been discovered why in many stores the pelt of the much abused skunk should be called by the elusive and dainty name of "Marten."

We Don't

nor why call a seal-dyed muskrat that never was within a couple of thousand miles of Hudson Bay by the glorified appellation of "Hudson Seal."

and, besides, the pelt of no wolf that ever prowled the prairie was even a close imitation of "Brer Fox," but every once in a while some enterprising but shortsighted vender of fur garments will try to "get away with it."

We believe furs should be marked exactly what they are worth—no more and no less.

and, while negotiations between countries have been carried on in cipher code, in the new era of things even that is almost at an end, and plain speech and plain figures are the order of the day; so should all goods be marked so that any child can understand, and if you think you would like to look at furs in a store conducted under conditions that are even as you would conduct a store if you had one, the latchstring is out.

BAN IS LIFTED ON LIGHTLESS NIGHT

To Remove Other Coal Restrictions as Conditions Return to Normal

Washington, Nov. 22.—Every plan and request for coal conservation made during the war by the United States Fuel Administration has been so cordially received and so thoroughly and thoughtfully carried out by the public that the policy of the administration henceforth will be gradually to eliminate restrictive orders and to carry on necessary voluntary conservation through educational means, it was announced.

In pursuance of this policy, orders were issued setting aside the "lightless" night order except where State Administrators, because of conditions local to their States feel the necessit of its continuance and direct that be kept in effect.

FINED $10 FOR VIOLATION OF LABOR LAWS

Two Worcester Manufacturing Concerns Charged With Breaking 54-Hour Law

Worcester, Nov. 22.—Several Worcester manufacturing concerns were brought before Central District Court for alleged violations of the labor laws of the State, through the activities of Inspector John D. Flesett of the State Board of Labor and Industries and E. E. Wallace, counsel for the board.

The Bradley Car Company and the Norton Company had several complaints against them filed except one complaint on which each was fined $10. These complaints alleged violations of the 54-hour law.

Cases against the Worcester Pressed Steel Company and the Worcester Manufacturing Company were continued for two weeks.

John J. Masterson, a baker at No. 16 Cambridge street, was fined. He had employed boys under fourteen years old in wrapping bread at one-half cent per 100 loaves.

20,000 Taxpayers in Worcester Are Delinquents

Worcester, Nov. 22.—Twenty thousand Worcester taxpayers were delinquent in paying their bills this year to City Treasurer Harry C. Smith. Special notices are being received from Mr. Smith asking these taxpayers to "come across." A long line of delinquents appeared before the city treasurer's windows in city hall.

RECOUNTS ASKED FOR IN WORCESTER ELECTIONS

Worcester, Nov. 22.—Two local contests each of which was won by an eight-vote margin on the face of returns are to be given recounts. Councilman William J. Guilfoyle, defeated for the Democratic nomination for Alderman from Ward 4 by Councilman Joseph Martin, asks for a recount. Harold M. Wyman, defeated for the Republican nomination for Councilman from Ward 2 by Councilman Michael J. O'Hara, is asking for the other.

BALL FOR DINNER FOR 500 SOLDIERS

An assembly dance for the purpose of providing a Thanksgiving dinner for 500 soldiers was held at the Copley-Plaza, under the direction of hostesses of the Knights of Columbus Liberty House on Berkeley street. A real old-fashioned New England dinner will be served to the soldier boys.

CONGRESS QUITS WORK UNTIL DECEMBER 2

Motion to Adjourn Greeted With Cheers—Republican Senators Oppose

Washington, Nov. 22.—Both houses of Congress have adjourned sine die, their extraordinary session. The second session will begin December 2 and last until March 4.

The proceedings in each house attendant upon adjournment were purely perfunctory. In the House of Representatives there has been an eagerness to adjourn for several weeks, but the Senate declined to enter into an agreement for a joint adjournment.

So the resolution, when presented by majority leader Kitchin, was adopted with a shout. Incidentally, the number of members who departed from the capital a month ago is so great there was barely a handful present when the adjournment resolution was passed.

When the resolution was brought up in the Senate, Senator Borah insisted upon having the roll called. The resolution was passed by the vote of 41 to 18, all of the negative votes being cast by Republicans except that of Trammel of Florida.

Crowley, James Lynch, William Dunn, Al. Clarkson, George Jordan, James Hughes, Joseph Barry, John Sweeney, William F. Cronin and Francis J. W. Ford.

A Thankful Thanksgiving

In 1631 a few settlers in a bleak New World held our first Thanksgiving, which was for the arrival of a ship's load of provisions from Europe. This year 100 million people will unite in Thanksgiving for peace with victory, bringing the "confident promise of a new day in which justice shall replace force."

And since the celebrations of the day centre around the Dining Room we are displaying at this time a very large and varied stock of Dining Room Furniture.

RETAILERS CAN ADVANCE PRICES ON EGGS, BUTTER

Food Heads Also Permit Them to Advance Figures on Cheese and Bacon

Retailers may advance their prices for butter, eggs, cheese and bacon beyond present levels, under the new price-fixing regulations made for those commodities by the State Food Administration.

Investigation shows that current Boston prices are below those authorized by the new rules, which are designed to protect the consumer from profiteering retailers.

Maximum profits allowed by the Food Administration are seven cents a pound on cheese; eight cents a dozen on candled eggs; six cents a pound on butter substitutes; and a bacon profit percentage based upon the amount bought and the price paid by the retailer.

Prices to the consumer, and the range allowed, follow:

Fresh tub butter, 64-72 cents a pound; storage tub butter, 53-63 cents a pound; eggs, candled, 53-60 cents a dozen; bacon, standard strip, 46-54 cents a pound; whole milk cheese, 35-40 cents a pound; Young America cheese, 37-41 cents a pound.

LOW PRICES THE RULE.

Investigation of retail prices showed that the best print butter of a high class grocery was 72 cents, no more than the new maximum for tub butter; that storage eggs were only 54 cents.

Prices in the best stalls in Faneuil Hall Market 71 cents, 68 cents, 65 cents and 60 cents for the best tub butter, compared with the Food Administration's prices of 64-72 cents a pound.

In other Faneuil and Quincy Market stalls which sell only goods of high quality, candled eggs were on sale at such prices as 58 cents, 55 cents, and 52 cents a dozen. There were candled eggs in some stalls at 62 cents, two cents above the new maximum. But the general run of butter and egg prices, and of cheese and bacon also, was notably lower than the maximum prices of the new Food Administration order.

PREFER SLENDER PROFITS.

Retailers in the market district have no objection, under the circumstances, to the Food Administration's new price-scales. They were willing to confide to the public that they are not profiteering in the articles newly added to the fair price list.

Several added that they had not raised their prices to the level now legalized by the Food Administration, for the rason that they feared their patrons would not pay them. They said they preferred slender profits to none at all.

War Trade Heads Lift Ban on Exportation of Raw Cotton

Washington, Nov. 22.—The War Trade Board let down the bars upon the exportation of raw cotton.

The board further removed war restrictions by shortening the conservation list.

Effective today, limitation on quantity that may be shipped to Spain is lifted and the board states that licenses will be granted freely. The same policy is to be adopted toward applications for license to ship to other foreign destinations.

Cotton and cotton yarns are also removed from the export conservation list at the same time.

TAKE 3 MORE ESCAPED PRISONERS IN MAINE

Portland, Me., Nov. 22.—Three of the eight youthful prisoners who escaped from the county jail by crawling through the ceiling of one of the cells and reaching the roof through a ventilator, are still at large, but officials were confident they would be taken soon.

Besides the two, who were caught before they could leave the city limits, three were captured by the sheriff's department in the woods at Yarmouth Junction.

GUITAR AT NAVAL BASE SENDS S. O. S. CALL

Instrument Is Very Lonesome and Asks a Harvard Man to Make It Musical

Plinka-planka-plunk with a couple of catarrhal side snorts thrown in for the sake of sea harmony will mean music as well as money to the ear of some lucky, yet unknown, Harvard lad.

It's a long story, mateys. The overtural setting is down the harbor—near the rocky shores of Hull. A seafarer on that staunch naval base—Bumkin Island—would perhaps a wooing go, or "mebbe" is bent on some nice errand where sweet music would prepare his way most happily.

Possibly he may not have cared to try the temper of his men too far. Then again he may have feared that Hawaiian music, served with a Weir River rhythm, would all of a sudden be rated with Wagner's operas. At any rate he sought solace and advice through the press, and any Harvard man, especially if he is a member of the instrumental clubs, may find it worth while answering the following notice which appeared in the Harvard Crimson today:

> Instrumental Clubs—Any member of the clubs who would like to break in a special guitar for the commandant of Bumkin Island, leave your name and address on the bulletin board in the Crimson Building. It is a financial proposition.

HARVARD LEAGUE OF NATIONS IN MEETING

The Harvard League of Nations will meet for organization next Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the New Lecture Hall, Kirkland street, Cambridge. President Lowell will be one of the several men who are to make addresses.

The league has been organized to show the strength of the feeling that exists at Harvard for a union of nations to enforce peace. John E. Harley, who has been instrumental in getting the body under way, is a fellow of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

Included in the 100 men who have so far signified their intention to become members are three Chinese and several representatives from India, Armenia and the Philippines.

JUDGE URGES NEW TRIAL FOR MOONEY

California Jurist Declares Right and Justice Entitle Labor Man to Rehearing

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 22.—Declaring that right and justice demand a new trial for Thomas J. Mooney, under sentence of death for participation in the preparedness day bomb explosion, Judge Franklin A. Griffen, before whom the case was tried, has written to Governor William D. Stephens, asking him to grant the condemned man a new trial.

Judge Griffen's letter is made public at a time when labor organizations are agitating for a nation-wide strike to emphasize their demands for a new trial for Mooney. Mooney's reprieve, granted by Governor Stephens, will expire on December 13.

Judge Griffen's letter to the Governor goes into details in the case and sets forth the reasons of the jurist for believing that Mooney, in the interests of justice and right, is entitled to a rehearing. It is a comprehensive review of the famous case.

LENORE ULRIC BRIGHT SPOT OF STAGE

Talented Actress Has Won Fame While Performing in Dialect Parts

By FRED J. McISAAC.

When a lot of old men get together they sigh for the "good old times." If they happen to be theatregoers they tell you that all the good actresses are dead or on their way to the scrap heap.

I mentioned Lenore Ulric as one of these antiques and he said:

"Huh, she's just a little specialty actress. First she played a Hawaiian in 'Blue Paradise,' then she was an Indian girl in 'Oklahoma' and now she's a French Canadian girl in 'Tiger Rose.' Probably all she can do is one of those soft, drawly dialect parts."

TELLS OF HER WORK.

Yesterday afternoon I had lunch with Miss Ulric at her hotel, and in the course of conversation she told me she had heard the same criticism of her work.

"I suppose there is a surface similarity in the three roles I have appeared in most recently," said the young actress, "but if you stood the Hawaiian, Indian and French-Canadian girls side by side I think you would find that my accent was quite different in each one and my conception of the roles not at all the same.

"It is merely that the three girls were all semi-savage and all fighting for a man, and all three nationalities pronounce their vowels in the same way that gives the impression of similarity to people who study acting superficially.

"The fact is that I have been on the stage for seven years and the first four of them I spent in stock. I have played hundreds of roles, from an old woman to a young girl. I have been the heroine, the character woman and the young boy. My stock training was very thorough and I think I learned something about acting.

"I am very anxious for an opportunity to show New York and Boston that such parts that I have been playing do not complete my repertory, and when you see the play which Mr. Belasco is preparing for me for next season you will be surprised to find me an entirely different sort of person from any I have ever been.

"As you see I have no foreign accent of my own to require that I play dialect parts, nor is Tiger Rose's manner of speaking my own naturally. I acquired my French-Canadian accent by hard study in a village north of Montreal, where I spent months listening to the types.

COPIED SPEECH OF INDIANS.

"My Indian dialect was criticized in my last play, and yet I copied the speech of two Indians, a man and woman with whom I was associated for some weeks. I have a naturally quick ear and a gift for mimicry, which explains why I have been given such roles by Mr. Belasco. My type also is said to be a bit exotic, and I suppose that is why I play wild girls."

"Do you prefer the stage to motion pictures?"

"Of course. I do not like pictures. They are not stimulating. They take the scenes hind side before; they kill you in the morning and then play the scenes that led up to the murder in the afternoon. You have no complex and enthralling part to work out, and while some people may be able to get up excitement over disconnected scenes, I can't. I love acting, but making photoplays is just hard work.

"By the way, I received a letter from a French Canadian the other day complimenting me on my accent. Now the fact is that I am not faithfully copying a French Canadian accent, because audiences wouldn't understand me if I did. I am refining it, giving just touches here and there for local color, and my argument is that Tiger Rose had been living so long among English people that she would naturally not talk just like a French habitante." There is such a thing as being too realistic on the stage. Realism must be either refined or exaggerated a bit to get just the right effect across the footlights.

TWO MARINES AND GIRLS HURT IN AUTO SMASH

Brockton, Nov. 22.—A United States marine and a girl companion are at Brockton Hospital as the result of a smashup early today, when an automobile in which they were riding crashed into a trolley pole in South Easton. They are Sergeant John Sutherland of the marine barracks, Hingham, and Miss Ida [illegible] 108 Bellevue avenue, Brockton. Both are badly bruised and cut. Sutherland has a fractured collarbone. They were with S. D. Strablan, also of the marine barracks, Hingham, and Miss Alice Syrewicz of No. 39 Bank street, Brockton, who were slightly injured. Sutherland, who owns the car, was driving and tried to take a corner at a forty-five-mile clip, the police say. The car was ruined.

HOW TO ADDRESS EX-PRISONERS LETTERS

All letters to American soldiers who were prisoners in Germany when the armistice was signed should be addressed to the company and regiment with which they served before their capture, the War Department in Washington announces. "Formerly prisoner of war in Germany" should be written in the left hand corner of the envelope.

DENIES "CUPID" BLACK IS HELD PRISONER

Former Yale Football Leader Was Rescued With Capt. Clyde of Harvard

Mariner, ancient or otherwise, page "Cupid" Black and use a bit of the English in so doing!

The former Yale football leader is not, as reported, a prisoner in Germany through the machinations of a sub-commander who once opposed him on a Harvard football team. The story is disproved by Guy Bancroft of the Boston News Bureau, a former Harvard crew captain, who got the facts from Captain Clyde, another Harvard grad, who was on the President Lincoln when the boat was torpedoed.

Mr. Bancroft says in a communication to the Harvard Alumni Bulletin:

"Captain (then First Lieutenant) Leslie Clyde, '14, was returning to this country on the President Lincoln last Spring when it was torpedoed by a German submarine. 'Cupid' Black was an ensign on the President Lincoln. It seems that after the boat was torpedoed Black and Captain Clyde found themselves with others in the same lifeboat. The German submarine had stayed in the vicinity and manoeuvred around among the different lifeboats.

GERMAN RECOGNIZED BLACK.

"When it came up to this particular one, one of its officers spoke with Black, recognizing him as a fellow-Yale man, although the German officer was of an earlier class than Black. It seems that Captain Clyde had an oar in the lifeboat, and in keeping the boat off from the submarine his oar slipped and hit one of the German sailors. This sailor turned quickly on Clyde, drew his gun and threatened to shoot. The German officer yelled at the sailor in German to the effect that if there was to be any shooting around there he would do it. Soon afterward the submarine disappeared, and Clyde, Black and the others were rescued by the U. S. S. Warrenton.

CLYDE INFORMS BANCROFT.

"This story was told me by Captain Clyde soon after he landed in this country, and though I only made a mental note at the time, I feel sure of the main facts, and since reading your editorial have confirmed them with Clyde's uncle.

"I am sending this story along to you, not only thinking that it may be the original from which the one you have published started, but especially because it seems to me to express the true spirit of manly good fellowship which is inspired by the training in our colleges, especially at Harvard and Yale, so contrary to the impressions given in the version as published. Even though a German, the breeding which that officer had received at Yale made itself evident; as it certainly would between any American college men."

I. W. W. LEADER GIVEN 10 YEARS FOR SEDITION

John L. Randolph Also Fined $5,000 Following Vehement Denunciation of U. S.

Auburn, N. Y., Nov. 22.—Following a vehement denunciation of the United States, John L. Randolph, I. W. W. and American Bolshevik leader, an outcast from Australia, was sentenced to serve ten years in the Atlanta Federal prison and fined $5,000, on a charge of sedition.

Judge Ray of the Federal Court, on two other occasions, attempted to sentence Randolph, but each time he burst into speeches which made it necessary to send him back to jail.

"The I. W. W. is only waiting the time when we can obtain power enough to overthrow the present government here. If we cannot do it peacefully, we will take arms," the prisoner shouted, when asked if he had anything to say before sentence was passed.

His outbursts were so continuous that the greater part of the session of the court was taken up in passing sentence.

Providence Embezzler, Conscience Stricken, Gives Himself Up

Worcester, Nov. 22.—Wearied by a guilty conscience which had haunted him for three weeks, James F. Fleming, seventeen years old, of No. 157 Wickenden street, Providence, walked into Station 1 and gave himself up. He told the police he was wanted in Providence for embezzlement.

Fleming said that three weeks ago he stole $300 owned by the Outlet, a well known Providence store. Providence police officials corroborated his story and sent officers to bring him to that city for trial.

WORCESTER BARBERS OPPOSE PRICE RAISE

Worcester, Nov. 22.—Although the Central Labor Union has indorsed the proposition of the Journeymen barbers' union for an increase in haircuts to 50 cents and shaves to 20 cents, some of Worcester's master barbers say they will refuse to boost prices.

CLAIM LAWRENCE CHARTER IS VIOLATED

Three City Departments Face Overdrafts Through Lack of Funds

Lawrence, Nov. 22.—Although the city charter of Lawrence specifically states that there shall be no overdrafts in city departments and that if there are, the heads of those departments shall be prosecuted, Lawrence again faces overdrafts. It was officially announced that the health and charity, engineering and public safety departments would run shy on funds.

The engineering department of the city would be forced into closing down immediately were it not for an arrangement made whereby funds are transferred to this department. Alderman Peter Carr states that his overdraft is due to the high cost of Lawrence's motor patrol, which, he says, is in constant need of repairs. Alderman Maloney's department will be overdrawn also, due principally to abnormal conditions arising from the influenza epidemic.

The claim is made that Lawrence is violating its charter again as it did last year, when the District Attorney's attention was called to the matter. Mayor John J. Hurley, director of finance, lays the blame for the financial muddle to war conditions and exigencies.

Ford's "Eagle" Plant to Make River and Lake Boats

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 22.—The Ford "Eagle" plant will be converted into a shipyard for the construction of inland waterway carriers, it was announced.

Another large plant will be constructed on the eastern seacoast for the same work, and in all employment will be given to 100,000 men, it is said. The contract for "Eagle" boats will be completed first, according to Henry Ford.

War Relief Show

Somerville Ocowskin Campfire Girls held a war relief show at the Prospect Hill Congregational Church for the benefit of the children in war-stricken countries of Europe. Campfire activities and recreation were illustrated and songs and sketches were given by members of the camp.

HOLDUP VICTIM IS LEFT UNDERWEAR AND SHOES

Cleveland, O., Nov. 22.—Joseph Wiczynski is all out of luck. He was all dressed up in his regular "Sunday clothes" and was walking down a dark street when two men stepped out and took away his $150. Not content with "breaking" him, they then ordered him to undress and when they left Joe didn't have coat, pants, vest, hat or overcoat. It was a chilly walk home, down dark alleys and behind buildings, according to his complaint to the police.

CITY WOMEN GO INSANE MORE THAN IN COUNTRY

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 22.—City women go insane more than their country sisters. This is the claim of Colonel Frank D. Whipp, fiscal supervisor of the Illinois Department of Public Works. He bases it on a compilation of figures during the recent year. It shatters the time-worn theory that rural life through its so-called drudgery has been responsible for more insanity among the country women than the city.

DARN THE KAISER! THE OYSTER OPENER IS GONE!

Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 22.—Another reason to be sore at the Kaiser: Restaurant owners here say that there is a decided shortage of expert oyster openers and that the man who gets 'em on the half shell is lucky. There has never been an oversupply of real shell-opening experts in Cleveland, and now that many of the men are dishing out other kinds of shells to the Kaiser and the Clown Prince, the smaller eating places are up against it for the artists of other days.

The "Chocolate Line"

—What is it? Well, it is something like a bread line. The chocolate line is peculiar to Paris and is one of the curious results of the war. It is spoken of in a letter which just came from the Filene Overseas Office, which said in part:

"You know the only way you can buy sweet chocolate at retail here is to stand in a long line during the hour when the daily chocolate allowance is put on sale for the privilege of securing a SINGLE HALF POUND. We will send photographs of this characteristic Paris sight. That is why we have been so proud of our unique concession of many pounds of chocolate a week.

"We have mailed samples so that you can all taste for yourselves. You will see this is just plain good chocolate without any frills, but it is absolutely pure and the most wholesome sweet the boys can have. Also, at about 65c per pound, it is the cheapest.

"In spite of peace 'hopes,' every American believes, I think, our men will still be here another long year at least."

We have sampled the samples and can vouch for it French chocolate is delicious. Orders for chocolate and many other things may be left at the Filene Overseas Gift Shop, street floor balcony.

Tommy Kehoe, the tiniest and youngest soldier in the trenches and author of the book, "The Fighting Mascot," will be in the Book Shop, sixth floor, Saturday of this week. If you'd like to see and hear him come between 10 and 12, or 2:30 and 4:30.

The Double-Breasted Overcoat Has Leaped Into Popularity

AS early as May of this year it was inevitable the Double-Breasted Coat would be in vogue. Our designer made some snappy, showy models, of which we illustrate five.

We confidently say we show more styles of Double-Breasted Overcoats, made in more variety of fabrics, than any other house in Boston.

These coats come in lengths from 40 inches, in the form-fitting "Shanley," to 50 inches in the comfortable, roomy "Tourist."

"Back Goes Your Money If You're Dissatisfied"

WANTS PEOPLE TO PAY BAY STATE LOSS

Stearns, at Fare Hearing, Thinks Public Should Put Road in Good Condition

Vice-President Stearns of the Bay State Street Railway Company testified before the Public Service Commission today that the company showed a deficit of $55,000 after the payment of operating expenses for the last fiscal year. This did not include any payment of dividends or allowances for depreciation in property, but did include urgent repairs incident to the operation of the company's lines.

Mr. Stearns was questioned at some length on the cost of operating the Bay State as compared with the Union Street Railway Company, running from New Bedford to Fall River. This examination was conducted by Attorney John W. Cummings, special counsel for Fall River.

POOR CONDITION IS COSTLY.

"Is the operating cost of the Bay State Street Railway Company more than the Union Street Railway Company," asked Mr. Cummings.

"It is considerably more," replied Mr. Stearns.

"How much more," asked Mr. Cummings.

"I should say from 30 to 40 per cent. more," said Mr. Stearns, who attributed this to better facilities employed by the Union Street Railway Company in the upkeep of that road. He acknowledged that the poor condition of the Bay State Street Railway generally was in a large way responsible for this condition.

"You are not paying as much for labor as the Union Street Railway," said Mr. Cummings. This was somewhat discredited by Mr. Stearns, who then said that on the present basis of that road adopted within the past two weeks, his road was probably not.

ASKS TWICE AS MUCH.

"What do you say causes the Bay State road to charge twice as much in fare as the Union Street Railway Company, which asks a unit fare of five cents," continued Mr. Cummings. To this Mr. Stearns pointed to the increased cost in operating the Bay State system, augmented by the impending action of the War Labor Board with regard to a probable recommendation of increased wages.

"How much would it cost to put the Bay State system in a condition to operate it economically," asked Mr. Cummings. "Nine million dollars and perhaps more," replied Mr. Stearns.

"How much would it cost to reduce the cost of power generation in order that the road might operate more economically in this respect," asked Mr. Cummings. "About $3,500,000 offhand, I should say," replied Mr. Stearns after some reflection.

CONSIDERED IT FAIR.

"Do you think it is fair for your company to come before this commission with a request for a raise in fare, under these conditions? Do you think it is fair to ask the public to pay for this cost of producing power, or, in other words, do you think the public should be called upon to make good the losses of the Bay State Street Railway Company?" asked Mr. Cummings.

"I certainly do," replied Mr. Stearns.

"Isn't it obvious that if the road was in a proper condition the cost of transportation would be materially reduced, and that the present request for an increased fare is to make good the increased cost," asked Mr. Cummings. "In part," replied Mr. Stearns.

During the hearing Vice-President Stearns, while being examined by Commissioner Joseph B. Eastman, stated, that in substantiation of Receiver Donham's request for a ten-cent fare said:

"The company is no longer in a financial position to suffer the losses incident to the reduced rate of working-men's tickets." He felt that owing to the large wages now being paid labor, that the working man was able to pay full cash fare.

LOVED MILLINER AS GOOD PAL, SAYS WESTON

Brookline Man Admits Taking Letters from Miss White's Room to Protect Self

How Horace Greeley Weston, Brookline foreman carpenter, obtained possession of letters written by Miss Mildred E. White, Boston milliner, declaring she was through with him and that their relations were at an end, when he learned she was about to sue him, was brought out in the trial of the $50,000 breach of promise suit in Norfolk Court at Dedham.

"I went to Miss White's room and took them off the table," admitted Weston who, it is claimed, was engaged to two women at one time and married a third.

With the offering of these letters and evidence in rebuttal to sustain the contention of Daniel J. Daley, Weston's counsel, that no offer of marriage was ever made by his client, the taking of testimony closed.

CASE TO JURY MONDAY.

Further trial of the case was suddenly halted until next Monday because Harvey Pratt, counsel for Miss White, had to appear before the Supreme Court to argue a case today. When the breach of promise suit is resumed on Monday the closing arguments will be made and the case given to the jury.

Counsel for Miss White pressed Mr. Weston hard for a definition of love when he was called to the stand for direct and redirect examination.

"What did you mean when you wrote to Miss White 'I love you just the same,'" said Mr. Pratt.

"Why," said Mr. Weston, red and plainly embarrassed, "I meant that I loved her as a good pal."

"Why did you take the letters written by Miss White off the table in her room?"

"Because she had threatened to sue me for breach of promise and I wanted to protect myself."

Counsel for Miss White produced a letter written by the latter to Miss Helen Andrews, elderly Brookline spinster, who published an announcement of her engagement to Mr. Weston, later denied by him. In this letter Miss White declared she was through with Weston once and for all.

"Did you annex this letter, too?" asked Mr. Pratt.

"No, I didn't," replied the witness emphatically. "Miss Andrews gave or sent it to me."

MEMORY FAILS HIM.

Pressed to say which, he was unable to say whether she mailed it to him or handed it to him. He could not recollect the circumstances of receiving it.

"Do you know what he means by 'annexing' that letter?" Attorney Daley queried of his client.

"Why—eh, no," said Weston, somewhat uncertainly.

"What did you mean by answering 'No'?" shouted Pratt.

Weston's reply was incoherent.

Mrs. Alice Dorothy Kelly Weston, wife of the defendant, related how she, Mr. Weston and Miss White took four auto trips together, squeezed tightly into a two-seated car, in which she sat beside Weston, although Miss White claimed an engagement existed between them at the time.

"How long during that time was Mr. Weston courting you?" Mr. Pratt asked.

SAW MUCH OF EACH OTHER.

"I don't know that he was courting me," she replied. "We lived in the same house and saw much of each other."

"How long after those rides in the Fall of 1916 did he propose to you?"

"He didn't propose to me."

"Well, how long were you engaged?"

"We were not engaged. We just went off and got married."

Counsel for Miss White immediately abandoned any further cross-examination of the witness.

Mr. Weston told of "swearing off" drinking when he decided that he was drinking too much. At the same time, he said, he decided to keep away from Miss White for a few months.

"You don't mean to say she was responsible for your drinking?" said Mr. Pratt.

"No, no," said Mr. Weston hastily. "I don't want to give that impression."

Miss White on redirect examination was questioned concerning her letter to Weston following his marriage. Attorney Daley sought to show that she was reconciled to the marriage.

"Were you not reconciled to his marriage to Miss Kelly?" he asked.

"No, I was heartbroken," she replied.

$12.65 FOR A TON OF COAL IN WAKEFIELD

Coal in Wakefield took a jump today of $1.25, making the new retail price $12.65 a ton. This is believed to be the highest price in the State. It applies to egg, pea and stove coal. Nut coal remains at its former price of $11.60—"for a while," the dealers say with discreet smiles.

TRUSTEES BALK AS DONLAN RETURNS

Dissension has broken out again in the ranks of the Infirmary Board of Trustees, according to word received at City Hall today. It follows the court's order to reinstate Dr. Charles Donlan, whom the trustees removed, as superintendent of the Long Island Hospital.

Already three members of the board have resigned, including Thomas E. Masterson, Thomas A. McQuade, and John F. Cusick. Today it was reported that Frank L. Brier, another trustee, was about to resign, along with another member.

In event of Mr. Brier' sresignation, it will leave the board without a quorum and an acting trustee will have to be appointed.

It is known that Dr. Donlan interviewed the mayor and stated that unless some action was taken relative to the reorganization or removal of the present board he did not feel inclined to resume his duties.

It was suggested that he take a two-weeks' vacation and that "probably by that time things would be adjustde."

The doctor stated that this was impossible in view of the fact that the budget for his department was being made up and that it was necessary for him to participate in this work.

FAMOUS FEATS BY MYSTERY SHIPS

British Vessels Accomplishing Wonders During War, Revealed by London

Copyright, 1918, by Universal Service.

London, Nov. 22.—Upon highest authority Universal Service learns that the "mystery ships," or "hush boats," of which heretofore only hints have been allowed to filter out of the censor's office, represent the British naval architects' most notable contribution to the war's wonders.

The "mystery ship" is said to be nothing less than a 30,000-ton airplane ship with false rigging and capacity for carrying fifty airplanes and a big work shop.

It is no longer a secret that only three of these marvel ships have been constructed so far, but they have already accomplished many amazing achievements.

Your correspondent is informed the most famous feat was recorded when Foreign Minister Balfour was rushed across the Atlantic in three days. That was at the time the Siberian situation was so acute it made the presence of the British foreign minister in Washington imperative.

SAVED PERILOUS SITUATION.

The almost unbelievable speed of the ship is credited with having saved a precarious situation.

Another "mystery ship" enabled a party of British officers some months ago to reach Vancouver in eight days from here via Halifax. The officers were urgently needed to join the allied Siberian expedition.

On another occasion the British Admiralty was warned that a German raider had eluded the blockade and was pirating on the high seas. Immediately two "mystery ships" were rushed out in quest of the raider. The result was that in less than twenty-four hours the raider was rounded up and sunk.

Later, another German sea marauder eluded the British, but was caught in seventeen hours by these giant sea hounds of marvellous speed power. Many other achievements of almost incredible value are related of these strange craft.

SPEED OF 54 KNOTS.

It is stated on excellent authority that these three mystery ships are considerably larger than destroyers and speedier. They have smaller coal room, carrying less ammunition and a smaller amount of food and supplies. This is believed to account for their remarkable speed in reaching distant ports. Their engine room is larger than that of the destroyers, enabling them to develop such terrific power.

It is asserted the ships have attained fifty-four knots in special tests and more than 1,000 knots a day in all sorts of weather in Atlantic waters.

Their only armament consists of one huge gun turret on each end, containing 15-inch guns able to sink anything afloat, while their speed enables them to overhaul any craft.

They are also equipped with bombing hydroplanes which appear suddenly "from nowhere" and with a direct hit can cripple the most powerful superdreadnought, which the terrific gunfire of the vessel can then sink.

CHARGED WITH SLAYING MAN IN PORTSMOUTH

Lawrence, Nov. 22.—Leonard Saratondia, arrested here today, confessed to the killing, according to the police, of an unidentified man found in a lodging house in Portsmouth, N. H., on the night of November 19. Saratondia, who formerly lived in this city, was arrested in one of his old haunts on Elm street by Patrolman Berthel. A loaded revolver was taken from his clothing. He will be sent back to Portsmouth.

SLAIN BRIDE'S MOTHER TO GET $10,000 INSURANCE

Chief Gunner's Mate Roy Stirmon of Newport naval station and his bride, whom he killed before ending his own life in a jealous rage.

Newport, R. I., Nov. 22.—The naval insurance of $10,000 held by Chief Gunner's Mate Roy Stirmon of the Naval Torpedo Station, who because of jealousy killed his bride, Mrs. Gertrude Elma Stirmon, and then killed himself, will go to Mrs. Stirmon's mother.

The medical examiner decided that Mrs. Stirmon, although the first one shot, survived her husband by a short period.

When Stirmon died his bride became his heir for the momentary life still remaining to her. The insurance money thus goes to her next of kin, her mother, who lives in Pomeroy, Wash.

Letters showed that Stirmon had urged his wife to let him slay her and then kill himself on account of her confessed love for Machinist's Mate L. J. Lawrence of the submarine F-3. Lawrence admitted his love for Mrs. Stirmon in a letter to her husband, adding:

"I know that I've fallen a lot short of a white man's standard in making love to a shipmate's wife."

Lawrence alluded to Mrs. Stirmon as "that wonderful girl."

A letter written by Mrs. Stirmon begins: "O, God, but I love you, my darling boy, better than life itself."

CHARGED WITH THROWING ACID IN WIFE'S EYES

New York, Nov. 22.—Dr. Meyer Ginsberg, a dentist, will come up for examination on Tuesday for throwing carbolic acid into his wife's eyes with the result that she may be permanently blinded. When taken to a hospital after the attack Mrs. Ginsberg declared she did not want her husband punished. He was said to be jealous.

WAS LONESOME, SO MARRIED YOUNG WIFE

[illegible], Nov. 22.—"I was too old [illegible] to marry. After the death of my first wife three years ago I spent many lonesome hours in this big house," declared eighty-six-year-old Samuel H. Rundle in discussing his twenty-six-year-old [illegible]

[illegible] and [illegible] damages.

"For a moment I thought I had found [illegible] brightness and happiness in a [illegible] for my old age. But I should have known better," he continued. "I should have been content with the companionship of people who have been with me here for so many years, with my housekeeper and the cook, who have grown old with me.

"And this charge of [illegible] I can't understand. It amazes and hurts me. The statement of Mrs. Rundle that I am worth $[illegible] is $400,000 miles out of the way.

"I first met Mrs. [illegible] when a friend of ours [illegible] brought her and [illegible] Summer. She was fair looking and very bright and agreeable.

"I don't remember whether her mother was present when I proposed marriage. As I remember it she [illegible] a great deal about marriage and [illegible] companionship of married people and we sort of worked up to the understanding that we were to be married. Yes, we worked up to it most pleasantly."

McCAIN PROUD OF PLYMOUTH DIVISION

By THOMAS F. PHELAN.

Camp Devens, Nov. 22.—"It is the business in life of some critics to tear down," says Major-General McCain in a printed address to the men of the Plymouth Division, comprising approximately [illegible] men, commending them for their attention to duty.

His remarks, it is asserted, concern the published reports in newspapers other than the AMERICAN of alleged happenings in two regiments in the Plymouth Division, the 36th and 42nd, on a recent Sunday.

The Plymouth Division is a separate organization from the Depot Brigade, which is composed, it is stated, of more than 12,000 men, some of whom are [illegible] absent without leave.

Here is Major-General McCain's address to [illegible] his division:

"To the Soldiers of the Plymouth Division:

"The division commander is justly proud of the fine conduct of the soldiers of the Plymouth Division, under the persistent rumors that peace is near and that their services will be no longer needed. All duties are being performed with the same attention to detail and the same snap that has been characteristic of the division since its organization. There are fewer absences without leave than before these rumors became prevalent.

"It is the business in life of some critics to tear down. These men are seeking and will continue to seek opportunities to reflect adversely on you as individuals and on the division as a whole. The division commander asks that you give these critics no [illegible] for such reflection and that you conduct yourself in such a way that [illegible] will be proud to show your record [illegible] and [illegible] that you [illegible] to the Plymouth Division [illegible] are no longer needed we won't be [illegible] informed by [illegible] a thousand [illegible] and in the [illegible] you [illegible] [illegible] days dates."

CAMBRIDGE ROW OVER $20,000 FOR SCHOOLS

Law and computation are both in [illegible] in a dispute between the school committee and the Mayor and city council of Cambridge in respect to an additional sum of money which the school committee claims it is entitled to.

Since the school committee received its allotment of $771,293.98 out of the tax levy for the fiscal year the city has turned over to the school committee a further sum of $25,000 received as income from various sources. The school committee claims that the amount should be $45,000 and to obtain the [illegible] members of the school committee brought a petition in the Supreme Court asking for a mandamus to compel Mayor Quinn and the [illegible] to do so.

The meaning of the word "local" in the tax laws is the real point which the court is called upon to decide. The city solicitor contends that the word applies only to the raising of taxes for municipal purposes in Cambridge, while counsel for the school committee argued that "local" did not mean the place where taxes were levied but the broad purpose for which such taxes were raised and would include the amount Cambridge was obliged to pay to the Commonwealth [illegible] its proportion for maintaining the Metropolitan Park system and other public improvements.

If the latter interpretation is adopted by the court and computation is made on the basis of the total tax revenue of Cambridge, the school committee will get $95,000 instead of $75,000.

Judge Crosby, who heard the case, reserved his decision.

A Masterstroke in Overcoat Making

It's the "Humber"

By The House of Kuppenheimer

Copyright 1918, The House of Kuppenheimer

About every so often, there looms up on the horizon of the overcoat world a style that is at once so original in its conception, so attractive in its execution and so irresistible in its appeal to the masculine mind that its popularity is instantaneous and overwhelming from one end of the country to the other. Such a coat is the "Humber," originated and exclusively produced by The House of Kuppenheimer who have been responsible for every great overcoat success scored in recent years.

Although a distinctly different type of coat, the "Humber" rivals its famous predecessor, the Kuppenheimer 'Klavicle,' in its ingenious design, in the difficulties it presents to would-be imitators, and in the enthusiastic reception accorded it by the public.

The "Humber" is a medium length, double-breasted coat with an ulster collar, slash pockets, a "cut-off" waist and a military front. It has three buttons, only two of which are ordinarily used. All in all, it's the smartest looking coat we've ever seen.

It comes in either rough or smooth finished fabrics of pre-wartime quality–browns, blues, grays, tans, heathers, etc.–trimmed inside with the finest silk and tailored, both inside and out, with rare skill and precision.

145 MERCHANT SHIPS OF U. S. SUNK IN WAR

Washington, Nov. 22.—From the beginning of the European war to the day of the signing of the armistice, the American merchant marine lost from acts of the Central Powers 145 vessels of 354,449 gross tons, involving the loss of 775 lives. Including [illegible] lost by the sinking of army and navy vessels, the total passes [illegible] thousand mark.

The major destruction was caused by submarines. In the four and a quarter years of the war 71 vessels of American registry were torpedoed and 67 sunk by gun fire. Only seven were lost by running afoul of mines. Only 19 vessels were sunk previous to the entrance of the United States into the war, the losses from April 6, 1917, to November 11 last being 126. Previous to the entry of the United States into the war sixty-seven lives were lost through sinkings, 708 men perishing in the more recent losses.

The tactics of the Germans in using the costly torpedoes only upon the larger vessels is illustrated by the fact that the torpedoed vessels averaged about 4,500 gross tons, while those sunk by gunfire averaged about 2,200 tons.

A large proportion of the ships sunk by gunfire were sailing vessels which could offer no resistance and which were abandoned by the crews when the U-boats appeared. Of the [illegible] lives lost by the merchant seamen only one life was lost in the destruction of the sixty sailing vessels.

The [illegible] of 703 of the victims is chargeable to submarine torpedoes. [illegible] who died thirty-eight were [illegible] by gunfire and thirty-four were [illegible] when their vessels were [illegible].

The figures compiled by the Department of Commerce are subject to some slight changes as there are several cases under investigation in which it is not clear that the loss was due to acts of the enemy.

WHITMAN SEES "DRY" VICTORY IN NEW YORK

Columbus, O., Nov. 22.—Governor Charles S. Whitman, New York, speaking before the World Prohibition Conference here, said his defeat by the [illegible] interests of New York was an empty victory for the "wets," inasmuch as the latter failed to elect a Legislature favorable to their cause. "The next New York Legislature is Republican," said Governor Whitman, "and the majority of the Republicans favor the ratification of the Federal [illegible] amendment. It is possible the Legislature will ratify the dry amendment at its next session."

ANXIOUS MOTHER — Uncle Sam will pay the transportation expenses of his returning soldiers to their home doorways. The War Department is already authorized to pay each soldier a travel rate of 3½ cents per mile. The increase of railroad fare to 3 cents a mile makes the Government allowance insufficient often to pay for food and sleeping car accommodations on top of the mileage. The War Department is developing a plan for chartering full trains to transport men returning overseas from the Atlantic ports of arrival to camps. The men will be fed army rations on these trains. Men living along the train route may be dropped off at their home stations. As each man leaves the train he may receive his discharge papers and back pay, thus being mustered out on the way home. It is planned, also, to handle the return of men in camps to their homes in a similar way.

ROXBURY MAN — Secretary Daniels states that the Navy Department will consider now applications for discharge. Ask your superior officer for detailed information covering your specific case, and forward your application through your commanding officer.

MRS. J. K. L. —Your son should apply for his discharge at once, giving reasons. It is unlikely that he will be released before the ship sails, but his application may be acted on by the time he returns. Unless he is under legal age, he will have to make application personally.

UNCLE —Your nephew should have appealed from the decision of the local draft board. All the statements in his questionnaire were considered when he was inducted into service. No specific ruling covering the discharge of aliens has been made. He must apply for his discharge personally, but he cannot be released from service while he is outside the United States.

Elms on Common Are 'Saved'; Autos Get 'Park'

It's all over—the "woodman spare the tree" stuff about the grand old elms on Charles street, near Boston Common.

Somebody said something at City Hall the other day about cutting down some elms on Charles street to make parking space for automobiles. Zowie! The Boston Common Society went right up in the air.

Individual members of the society rushed to the defence of the Common. "It must not be desecrated," etc. etc.

After several saviors had lived their brief day of publicity, the city officials went and looked the place over and just decided to chop off ten feet of the sidewalk bordering on the Public Garden on Charles street and let the autos park there.

That's what everybody wanted to [illegible] in the first place, the elms are still there and life flows merrily on.

Philadelphia, Nov. 22.—Seven thousand three hundred and five quarts of whiskey! He should worry about nation-wide prohibition.

He was including five extra days for as many leap years.

No Mark-Down Sales in December Before Christmas!

Do you realize what this means?

It means that when Uncle Sam says "Buy Christmas Gifts in November" he expects the stores to make November shopping advantageous in price, as well as in comfort and convenience.

The stores will do so—by protecting the patriotic November shopper from mark-down December before-Christmas sales.

This year there will be no MARK-DOWN SALES between December 1 and December 25.

The shopper of former years, who waited for the just-before-Christmas mark-downs, should this year buy in November, when prices, assortments and comfort recommend so doing.

You won't gain—financially—by waiting.

JITNEY DRIVERS ON RACK.

Six automobiles filled with jitney drivers left here for the office of the Massachusetts Highway Commission. The men were summoned there to explain their reason for overloading their machines and speeding on the State highway. It was announced by one of the men that they contemplate forming a protective organization because of alleged persecution. They also contemplate petitioning the War Department to continue the camp indefinitely, now that there are rumors of the place being disbanded. Since the camp started some of the drivers have become immensely wealthy. The demobilization talk of late has interfered with their business, it is asserted.

CHALLENGE BOXERS.

A challenge has been issued by the camp athletic officers to athletes of the Great Lake Naval Training Station at Chicago for an all-star boxing tournament in that city December 7, in which the camp hitters are eager to figure. It is proposed in the challenge that the Chicago men tender a reasonable guarantee to defray the travel and hotel expenses. If agreeable to the Windy City men the army football eleven will play there that day and the boxing match can be held the night before. Present indications point to the acceptance of the challenge.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 22.—Salesmen of the [illegible] kind can't be [illegible] by war. Captain D. H. "Isn't it about time that you buy that washing machine, Kelley?" was the smiling greeting.

Kelley agreed to buy when he reaches America.

RADIO STUDENTS EAGER TO SEE N. Y. GAME

Anxious to Be Among Rooters at Polo Grounds Gridiron Clash

U. S. Naval Radio School, Cambridge, Nov. 22.—Radio students today had two chief worries with which to contend. First, whether [illegible] order come for the demobilization of the Radio School personnel, and second, how many of them could get leaves to attend the big [illegible] Aviators-Radio football game at the Polo Grounds in New York.

There were those who felt that the announcement of demobilization would not be forthcoming for some time. They based their belief on the statement by the commandant of the First Naval District that when demobilization was actually in force the Radio School was expected to be the last to disband, inasmuch as there was a demand for wireless telegraphers.

Orders have been issued, however, to commanding officers of the United States navy to receive applications for discharge from officers and enlisted men. It was expected that the filing of such applications would be begun at once at the Radio School by those who desire to resume their school studies.

Scores of students today made applications for leave in order to take part in the big "rooting bee" to be held at the Aviators-Radio football game in New York tomorrow. It is expected that more than 200 will leave tomorrow to encourage their champions.

SAYS KAISER FAILED IN ATTEMPT TO FOOL PEOPLE

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 22.—Arthur B. Lloyd, an American soldier in France, writing to relatives here, says the Kaiser has failed in his attempts to deceive his people about their "God-given victories," if the stories of German prisoners of war are to be believed.

"I spent most of my day of leave at the prisoner of war enclosure," Lloyd writes. "My rusty German got a good workout and I gained some interesting stuff on the German viewpoint. I was rather surprised to find how [illegible] of the intelligent ones believe the statements of Ludendorff, Hindenburg & Co. about the American army and how a [illegible] was a great [illegible] of [illegible].

"Most of them are shrewd enough to see that [illegible] as the widely-advertised [illegible] 'victories' have failed to end the war they are not of [illegible] Potsdam and the Wilhelmstrasse would have them believe."

Filene's MEN'S SHOPS

The long and the short of it

The Filene policy of everyday service is based on the belief that the average man "wants what he wants when he wants it."

Some stores act as if they thought the public's convenience should wait on theirs! They give men style at the season's beginning at a "long" profit. And only near the season's close, when models are no longer new, a relatively moderate price.

The Filene policy of large, forehanded buying of honest merchandise and a "short" profit, insures a wide choice and a low price for every man every day in the year. This is the policy which has built an enormous men's business in the brief space of six years. If it "sounds good" to you now, with severe weather just around the corner, it's as good a time as any to test it out in Filene's men's

Suits and overcoats $20 and up

Stein-Bloch suits and overcoats $30 up

suits

With the close of the fighting, military influence will gradually wane and civilian styles come again to the fore.

And the Filene store is ready with both styles in every popular model, every wanted fabric, every size, including the new "plump" for the man with a "limited" bay window. $25, $30 and $35 are good average prices to pay today.

ulsters

Why wait for severe weather? Stocks are complete—take time for careful choosing. Filene ulsters $30 to $65; Stein-Bloch $40 to $75 and worth more!

derbies

The hat to wear with a shapely overcoat! Crowns are medium deep, but beginning to be more round; "curls" have a heavier "roll." Black still leads. Moderately priced at $3, $4 and $5.

overcoats

Last call on topcoats! Then, 'way for the heavy brigade! Filene stocks now at their fullest—you know, or should, what that means! "Fitted" or "shapely" overcoats still have the call, particularly in double-breasted styles — Filene models smart yet not extreme. Pay $30, $35 or $40 if you can. High time for rain coats and gabardines, too. $30, $35 or $40 buys a real one!

R. I. BOSSES ARE ANGERED BY JENNINGS

Trying to Deprive Him of House Speakership for Opposing Fare Increase

Providence, Nov. 22.—For daring to openly fight the Rhode Island Company during the recent street car fare increase, Republican leader of the House of Representatives Richard W. Jennings will be disciplined by the political bosses and his elevation to the speakership is in doubt, according to well informed politicians.

They say "Dick" had the temerity to [illegible] their orders.

[illegible] Jennings caused a sensation in the House by fighting the increase asked by the street car company. It was predicted his retirement would result. Not so, however, for Jennings would not be overruled and is credited with telling the [illegible] that he would run for the Legislature whether they approved his action or not.

Jennings was a candidate and was returned with a handsome plurality. As floor leader the next step would be the Speakership. The bosses have agreed upon Representative Arthur P. Sumner who was opposed as leader by Jennings and who argued for the increases asked by the street car company.

From a reliable source it is learned that the G. O. P. leaders discussed the Jennings case and many of the members are said to be with Jennings and will fight the will of the bosses. The Legislature will convene the first week in January and the hottest fight in the history of the "organization" is predicted. Jennings says he [illegible] until they count him out.

Rumor is to the effect that Governor Beeckman proposes to recommend progressive legislation, as well as lack of ousting many of the State commissions, including the Public Utilities Commission, is said to have resulted in secret meetings of the club credited with passing on all matters of public and industrial interest before being presented to the Legislature for action.

FARMERS CALL FOR FEDERAL ECONOMY

National Grange Urges Improvement in Country Districts

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 22.—The National Grange, in session here, adopted a bill of rights embracing the following sixteen points:

Rigid economy in all government departments which have added burdens on account of the war.

Encouragement and fostering of agriculture and action to make food producing a profitable occupation.

Extensions of government and municipal marketing and distributing functions, so that the burdens of producer and consumer shall be lightened.

Instant removal of the press censorship made necessary on account of the war and restoration of a free speech and press.

Government control of railroads when they have reverted back to their private owners, to prevent over capitalization and consequent evils.

Improvement of all post roads and highways systems over which foods are transported and a curtailment of the improvement of boulevard systems in the cities where only a few are benefited.

Recognition of agriculture in the legislative halls through the election of real farm representatives.

Change the Federal Department of Agriculture, that [illegible] of the department may be [illegible] practical farmers. This is a direct slam at Secretary D. F. Houston, who is not approved of by the grange as an organization.

Extension of the Federal land bank system, that farm tenantry and landlordism may be discouraged. The report on this point declared that tenantry and landlordism are increasing and that the land is slowly falling into the hands of a few.

Provide good tillable farms for returning soldiers and offer them assistance to become good farmers. The report on this subject is against giving arid and swamp lands to soldiers.

Converting of war plants such as picric and nitric acid plant factories into fertilizer plants.

Inclusion in the tariff of all farm products so that agriculture as an industry may be protected.

Education of the children on the farms through the rural school on a basis of conditions and not on city standards of education. The report pointed out that present education drives the farm child away from the farm rather than to it.

Organization of a fighting farmers' body through the grange and similar organizations, that the program of reconstruction may be carried out with a unanimity of opinion.

Jeremiah O'Connor, forty, of Chapin place, Cambridge, employed at the Hood Rubber Company, Watertown, was killed while at work.

O'Connor was riding on top of a heap of boxes that filled an electric truck. As he turned a corner in going from one department to another, he was thrown from his position into the path of the truck. One of the wheels passed over his head and killed him instantly. He is survived by his wife and two children.

ORDERED TO LABEL COLD STORAGE EGGS IN N. Y.

CHILD GETS SICK CROSS, FEVERISH IF CONSTIPATED

Look at tongue! Then give fruit laxative for stomach, liver, bowels.

"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm children and they love it.

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish; stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is ofttimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."—Advertisement.

Arthur Finds Honora Is a Comforting Person After His Experience With Mildred

As M[illegible] [illegible] him so carelessly and flippantly, Honora's affection for him sprang [illegible] to arms and she found herself intensely angry that anyone could have wounded him. Then, with [illegible] she appreciated [illegible] what one had been a pang of jealousy because to Mildred had been offered that which seemed to Honora the most precious thing in the world.

[illegible] believed that Mildred had definitely refused Arthur Bruce. She was sure that the girl was only playing with him and that later she would accept him. [illegible] she loved him [illegible].

All these thoughts had kept the older girl awake late into the night and called her from her slumber by dawn.

Mildred's confession this morning had made the whole affair look different.

[illegible] the child had seemed to lead Arthur on to a profession of affection. But it was quite evident that she did not love him. Honora [illegible].

No Longer to Be Considered

Mildred's sister had a right now to acknowledge this love. It was so strong that it brought with it a certainty that by its very strength it would, sooner or later, attract to her its object.

[illegible] Mildred was no longer to be considered, there was no disloyalty [illegible] thinking [illegible] accepting any attentions he might [illegible] to offer her.

Honora knew that Arthur Bruce [illegible]. When they were children he found her a more congenial companion than Milly. Milly had cared nothing about books while Arthur and Honora had been [illegible] readers. Milly had been timid about playing rough games, Honora had been a tomboy. Therefore Arthur had seemed to be the older [illegible] girl's especial friend.

When the man came home from college the situation changed entirely.

Mildred had grown very pretty and the [illegible] quarrels and tempers that had irritated the lad appealed to the man.

[illegible] was sure [illegible] temporary. [illegible] father to the man, and Arthur Bruce's character and [illegible] had preferred [illegible]

[illegible] would come.

Youth is sanguine and must be served. It is also sentimental. A [illegible] of a verse she had once read came to Honora's mind:

[illegible] my own will come to me.

She was on her way home from [illegible] did not know that [illegible] till she was startled by a voice at her elbow.

"Good afternoon," Arthur Bruce greeted her. "Why are you looking so happy?"

"[illegible]," she exclaimed. "Why—[illegible] I don't know."

"[illegible] stop [illegible] whether [illegible] that you are happy about [illegible] must be nice to feel as satisfied as you look."

Honora Agrees

[illegible] the very word that Mildred [illegible] this morning.

"Yes," Honora agreed, "I am satisfied," [illegible] added, "I am satisfied [illegible] things. About [illegible]"

"[illegible] satisfied about anything!" Arthur declared bitterly. "I [illegible] fellows find that [illegible] to be a bit what [illegible]"

[illegible] turned out of the crowded [illegible] street and were strolling [illegible] wide avenue that led to the street on which the Trents lived.

"You are going out of your way," Honora reminded her companion. "We just passed our corner."

"I know," he said, "but I would like to walk with you if you don't object. If you do, I can go home."

She thought he was joking until she glanced at his face. Then she saw that it was clouded by unhappiness.

"Certainly I don't mind," she returned. "Why should I?"

"If you don't, your toleration of my society is the first pleasant thing that has happened today."

"That's too bad," she sympathized. "Has business gone so hard—and on the first day, too?"

He tried to laugh. "It wouldn't," he admitted, "if I had been able to keep my thoughts on it. But I started wrong, and out of sorts—so it seemed infernally hard."

"I am sorry," she said.

The words were not much. Still she could see that the cloud lifted a little as she uttered them.

"OH, nothing special. I was just gabbing."

But after he had gone and I hurried through my work, I couldn't take my mind from the puzzling conduct of my husband—and my brother.

I was still in the midst of work and conjecture when the phone rang and Evvy's husky, throaty little voice came to me with a gurgle of delight.

"My dear, I've had the most gorgeous inspiration [illegible] and I have a date for the [illegible] Motor Cup Races today [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] family could [illegible] arrange it for [illegible] date."

So Sheldon's battle[illegible] "torpedo" drew up to our door at about the same time Terry [illegible] touring car brought [illegible] and Jim's sisters to call for Neal and me. Sheldon's joy at seeing Virginia masked her well-bred but icy nod to Evvy, but things congealed again when Sheldon begged Virginia to come in his car, and [illegible] an aloof air she declined.

Of course he felt [illegible] snubbed, since he couldn't know [illegible] it was Evvy she was avoiding and not him. To cover his [illegible], he asked Terry to spare him a passenger or two—"young Neal and Miss Phoebe, for instance."

Phoebe and Neal [illegible] overjoyed, and a gleam of pleasure [illegible] into Evvy's narrowed [illegible] the spark didn't last long [illegible] Virginia turned to Terry and from him to Sheldon.

"Oh, dear Captain W[illegible], since you aren't the [illegible] for formality I've learned to [illegible] all you dear English to be, [illegible] help me make amends [illegible] for my curt refusal of [illegible]—and release me [illegible] these children, to chaperon [illegible] gray car?"

This meant Virginia [illegible] going to keep Neal and Phoebe under her watchful eye—but it [illegible] Evvy out on a cold world. Smoothly, though with high color that meant annoyance, she turned to Virginia.

Safe to Plan

"If you've quite decided, Mrs. Dalton—perhaps I'm safe to plan to be with my dear Anne?"

"Jimmie boy, I'm the odd one in this party. You won't make me feel that an old friend like me is hopelessly in the way, will you?"

Her tone suggested that every one else had made her feel like an intruder and I knew that it must appeal to everything chivalrous in my boy's nature.

"You're just an added joy, Evvy," returned the Eternal Masculine.

In another moment Evvy was perched up to Jim, and exclaimed with a little air of confiding:

"[illegible], boy, do you remember [illegible] wonderful 'hunches' I used to [illegible]. That time at the Vanderbilt Cup six years ago—and the next Fall at Sheepshead Bay?"

[illegible] and Evvy drew closer [illegible] her voice fell to whis[illegible] [illegible] my husband drew [illegible] sat erect, alert, vibra[illegible] [illegible]. And now he [illegible] for me to hear [illegible] your hunch, Evvy [illegible] I have with me goes on the Yankee Kid—Grayson. And if I win [illegible] name your reward."

Evvy laughed and slid her hand into Jim's "to shake on it." He appeared not to notice her. He was tense again—feverish—like the strange Jim who had sat shaking dice with my young brother the night before.

CHAPTER XLVIII.

"JIM, you aren't going to—put any money on these races, are you?" I whispered anxiously as our car crept into a long line of motors moving slowly by the green fences, behind which the Hardegriff Motor Cup Race was to be run.

"It's a great day, Anne, and I expect to have a bully time—so no curtain lectures," laughed Jim with boyish sweetness intended to take the sting from his words.

I didn't. I had to do a little resolute winking of both eyes before I could risk opening them on the turmoil of the scene about me.

Up a white ribbon of road we crawled in our maroon car. And there, under the direction of uniformed police, we were suddenly released from the tortuous slowness of our approach to the field and went darting through the green gate into a swarm of tightly-packed cars.

Overhead airplanes were darting about—dipping and whirling and circling like giant dragonflies and buzzing, and the warm sunlit air whistled all about us as it blew in with a fresh tang from the sea.

It was the first time I had gone to a great automobile race, and my heart raced and sang with the wonder of it all, and of course I wanted to share my feelings with Jim. But when I turned to slip my hand in Jim's he had been pushed ahead of me by the jostling crowd, and I caught a glimpse of him holding Evvy in front of him and steering her by her elbows, so she was free of the mob that was bruiting about us as it surged along.

"[illegible] right, Mrs. Jimmy. I'm bringing up the rear, and Betty's [illegible] right flank," sang out Terry [illegible], just as I was ready to get [illegible] over the strangeness of [illegible]

Betty Is Friendly

[illegible] Betty's hand found mine, and together we three came to the [illegible]. Jim and Evvy were waiting [illegible] Sheldon and Neal [illegible] Virginia and [illegible] was[illegible] room for all [illegible] Evvy and Sheldon [illegible] to go to their [illegible] and again Evvy sat with wide [illegible] eyes focussed on my husband and quivering red lips murmuring to him, while her little right hand beat on his arm with determined insistence.

I wondered if the airplanes flying overhead caused the wild glint in Jim's eyes—or whether Evvy's words had power to move him so.

Then Jim rose and cried recklessly, "All right, here's to your hunch—the eight-to-one shot!"

And he darted out of the box.

Evvy smiled complacently, settled her furs about her and turned to Neal.

"Jim's gone to put his money up on the Yankee Kid, Grayson," she said. "You'd better chase after a 'bookie,' too, lad."

But Phoebe laid her hand quietly on Neal's coat sleeve, and my young brother remarked indifferently that just watching was enough to give him heart disease even without having to worry about his salary. Whereupon Phoebe fed him a caramel with an absurd little maternal air that made even Virginia laugh, and I had to laugh also, like one of a chorus. But I did not laugh again during the long hour I waited for Jim to return.

The Zeppelin's Passenger

An Absorbing War-Time Novel Based on the Adventures of a German Spy in England

CHAPTER XI.—Continued

HE turned away and came back towards her. As he passed the lamp, she started.

"Why, you're wet," she exclaimed, "wet through!"

"Of course I am," he admitted, feeling his sleeve, "but to tell you the truth, in the interest of our conversation I had quite forgotten it. Here comes our guests, before I have had time to escape. I can hear your friend Lessingham's voice."

CHAPTER XII.

THE three dinner guests entered together, Lessingham in the middle. Sir Henry's presence was obviously a surprise to all of them.

"No idea that you were back, sir," Harrison observed, shaking hands.

Sir Henry greeted them all good-humoredly.

"I turned up about three-quarters of an hour ago," he explained, "just too late to join you at dinner."

"Bad luck, sir," Sinclair remarked. "I hope that you had good sport?"

"Not so bad," Sir Henry admitted. "We had to go far enough for it, though. What do you think of that for an October codling?"

They all approached the scales and admired the fish. Sir Henry stood with his hands in his pockets, listening to their comments.

"You are enjoying your stay here, I hope, Mr. Lessingham?" he inquired.

"One could scarcely fail to enjoy even the briefest holiday in so delightfully hospitable a place," was the somewhat measured reply.

"You're by way of being a fisherman yourself, I hear?" Sir Henry continued.

"In a small way," Lessingham acknowledged. "I have been out once or twice."

"With Ben Oates, eh?"

"I believe that was the man's name."

Philippa glanced up from her work with a little exclamation of surprise.

"I had no idea of that, Mr. Lessingham. Whatever made you choose Ben Oates? He is a most disgraceful person."

"It was entirely by accident," Lessingham explained. "I met him on the front. It happened to be a fine morning, and he was rather pressing in his invitation."

Not Much Sport

"I'm afraid he didn't show you much sport," Sir Henry observed. "From what Jimmy Dumble's brother told him, he seems to have taken you in entirely the wrong direction, and on the wrong tide."

"We had a small catch," Lessingham replied. "I really went more for the sail that the sport, so I was not disappointed."

"The coast itself," Sir Henry remarked, "is rather an interesting one."

"I should imagine so," Lessingham assented. "Mr. Ben Oates, indeed, told me some wonderful stories about it. He spoke of broad channels down which a dreadnought could approach within a hundred yards of the land."

"He is quite right, too," his host agreed. "There's a lot of deep water about here. The whole of the coast is very curious in that way. What the—what the dickens is this?"

Sir Henry, who had been strolling about the room, picked up a Homburg hat from the far side of a table of curios. Philippa glanced up at his exclamation.

"That's Nora's trophy," she explained. "I told her to take it up to her own room, but she's always wanting to show it to her friends."

"Nora's trophy?" Sir Henry repeat. "Why, it's nothing but an ordinary man's hat."

"Nevertheless, it's a very traveled one, sir," Harrison pointed out. "Miss Nora picked it up on Dutchman's Common the morning after the observation car was found there."

Sir Henry held out the hat.

"But Nora doesn't seriously suppose that the Germans came over in this sort of headgear, does she?" he demanded.

"If you'll just look inside the lining, sir," Sinclair suggested.

Sir Henry turned it up and whistled softly.

"By Jove, it's a German hat all right!" he exclaimed. "Doesn't look a bad shape, either."

He tried it on. There was a little peal of laughter from the men. Philippa had ceased her knitting and was watching from the couch. Sir Henry looked at himself in the looking-glass.

"Well, that's funny," he observed. "I shouldn't have thought it would have been so much too small for me. Here, just try how you'd look in it, Mr. Lessingham," he added, handing it across to him.

Lessingham accepted the situation quite coolly, and placed the hat carefully on his head.

"It doesn't feel particularly comfortable," he remarked.

"That may be," Sir Henry suggested, "because you have it on wrong side foremost. If you'd just turn it round, I believe you would find it a very good fit."

Lessingham at once obeyed. Sir Henry regarded him with admiration.

"Excellent!" he exclaimed. "Look at that, Philippa. Might have been made for him, eh?"

Imported Hats

Lessingham looked at himself in the glass and removed the hat from his head with some casual observation. He was entirely at his ease. His host turned toward the door, which Mills was holding open.

"Captain Griffiths, sir," the latter announced.

Sir Henry greeted his visitor briefly.

"How are you, Griffiths?" he said. "Glad to see you. Excuse my costume, but I am just back from a fishing expedition. We are all admiring Mr. Lessingham in his magic hat."

Captain Griffiths shook hands with Philippa, nodded to the others, and turned towards Lessingham.

"Put it on again, there's a good fellow, Lessingham," Sir Henry begged. "You see, we have found a modern version of Cinderella's slipper. The hat which fell from the Zeppelin on to Dutchman's Common fits our friend like a glove. I never thought the Germans made such good hats, did you, Griffiths?"

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

Seeks to Prove His Love

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am twenty-two and love a girl of eighteen. My long working hours are keeping me away from her; also I am not a good love-letter writer. I badly need your kindly advice. At our last meeting I said to her plainly, "I love you." She doubted me. I told her I had no experience in making love, but was willing to do anything to show her the truth if it was in my power. She said: "Yes, if it is in your power, but I am not going to tell you what you should do, because it would be too easy for you then." What is the thing she wants me to do for her?

UNHAPPY LOVER

I THINK you are extremely romantic, which is, of course, a desirable quality in a lover. Perhaps the girl you love sees this trait in you and is taking advantage of it in an innocent way. Unless I were a clairvoyant I couldn't possibly tell you what love-test she has in mind to impose on you, but I doubt if it is anything very severe. Have you tried sending her flowers or asking her to the theatre?

The Cabaret Habit

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am eighteen and have been out with a young man four times. Each time he has taken me to a different cabaret. Both he and I have light drinks. He acts to me as a perfect gentleman. Now, my cousin remarked that respectable persons do not go to cabarets often. Do you think I ought to refuse him when he invites me to go once more?

ANXIOUS.

I THINK you are too young to go habitually to cabarets, especially unchaperoned. The next time the young man invites you, suggest that you would prefer to go to a quieter place, or to receive him at your home.

EGGS SELL AT $1 AND PROMISE TO GO HIGHER

Brookline Pays Top-Notch Price—Other Cities Vary Down to 72 Cents

By ELIZABETH ELLAM.

The plain plebeian egg is a plain plebeian egg no longer. It has climbed into the king row and is now an aristocratic member of the first families. With eggs at $1 a dozen, and promising to go higher than that before long, the egg today can only be regarded with a most respectful eye and treated accordingly.

Do you remember, in your childhood days, what a great tragedy the story of "Humpty-Dumpty, who sat on a wall," meant to you? That childhood tragedy pales into insignificance in comparison with the tragedy of the kitchen when the cook accidentally breaks an egg.

"Eggs is certainly eggs," in these days. A remarkable thing about the situation is that locality seems to have so much to do with the price that you pay for your eggs!

If you live in Brookline, you pay a top-notch price. If you live in Watertown, you can pay a price that is higher than that, if you care to. Then—if you chance to live in Somerville—you will find that you can buy "fresh eggs" just as fresh as the Brookline variety at almost thirty cents less per dozen.

FOOD HEADS FIX PRICE.

The Food Administration has fixed the price on eggs of the candled variety. Your dealer can charge you from 53 to 60 cents a dozen for this kind of storage egg. If he charges more he can be prosecuted. The Food Administration has neglected to fix the price of the "fresh eggs" to be found on the market, and which vary in price from 72 cents a dozen to $1, today!

What is the real reason back of this unheard of price for eggs? "The fact that the big dealers in Maine killed off almost all of their hens last year, when feed was so high, and the new stock has not begun to lay," promptly replied the pleasant dealer in the Faneuil Hall Market, to whom I put my question.

"Grain was so high at that time that the men who had big henneries up there could not afford to feed their stock. They killed almost everything, and shipped it into Boston, to the markets. Now we are paying the price for it. I should not be surprised to see eggs go higher than this, before January, and I certainly do not anticipate any drop in price before March."

So much for that. Then comes the question—what do the hens that lay the 72-cent eggs eat? What do the hens that lay the 85-cent eggs eat? What is the feed of the hens that lay the 92, the 95 and the 97-cent eggs? For, by actual investigation, I found that these prices existed, in various localities just around Boston, and all for "Maine eggs"!

THEY'RE 85 IN WALTHAM.

In Brooklie Village I could buy the freshest eggs for 91 cents a dozen. Then there were "fresh eggs" at 77 cents, less fresh eggs at 68 cents, at 55 and just eggs at 51. That was in a well-known creamery that specilizes in eggs and has made a reputation in that line.

In Brookline, just a few minutes beyond the village, eggs were quoted at $1 a dozen. These were the fresh varieties, guaranteed eggs. There were no others quoted, save a "cooking egg"—that might as well have been called cold storage.

Waltham dealers sell their freshest eggs at 85 cents a dozen and, strange to relate, they do not come from Maine. The Berkshire hens apparently can lay cheaper eggs than the Maine hens, for the Berkshire eggs were only 85 cents a dozen. They were guaranteed eggs at that.

Next I pursued my investigation into a big wholesale house in the Back Bay—one that has branches in Brookline and in the downtown section of Boston. This house quoted its strictly fresh eggs at 96 cents a dozen, and nothing between that and the cold storage egg. These 96-cent eggs came from Maine and New Hampshire, and some even from Massachusetts.

On Summer street I visited another big house, and here eggs were 90 and 97 cents. The latter were guaranteed eggs, "from Maine," and the others were just eggs. Within a half block of that store is another that is one of a chain of stores. Egg quotations there were 95 cents for strictly fresh Maine eggs, with less fresh eggs for 75 and just eggs for 52 cents a dozen.

72 IS SOMERVILLE FIGURE.

Somerville is selling fresh eggs today at 72 cents a dozen—and strictly fresh eggs at that, according to the information given to me. In December fresh western eggs only were to be found—these at 60 cents a dozen. In Cambridge fresh eggs are quoted at 95 cents.

In Watertown there are eggs to be had at 90 cents a dozen and at $1 a dozen. In the same town it is claimed, one can pay as much as $1.30 a dozen for eggs—and each egg has the name and address of the hen that laid it upon it. These are the freshest of the fresh eggs. The same kind of eggs, laid only two days ago in Arlington, were offered to me in the Quincy market for just $1 a dozen.

There can be no question of cost of delivery entering into these last prices quoted. In Watertown you simply take your parcels with you. In the Quincy Market there are no deliveries, save that of goods sent by express, and these are charged to the purchaser, while the two big stores quoted at 97 and 96 cents a dozen deliver at your door, if you wish. This is one of the cases where cost of delivery ceases to be a good excuse.

What then is the answer to the egg situation?

Missouri Town Closed to End Booze Sales

Pittsburg, Kan., Nov. 22.—When in doubt about how to close a booze town in a wet State, next to a dry town, call upon the railroad administration.

This is the advice of country officials here.

Just across the Missouri line for years the Missouri Pacific has had a station at Minden, at which beer and booze, in carload lots, have been unloaded and which later found its way into the mining camps on the Kansas side. All efforts to stop the practise failed.

Recently County Attorney H. W. Timmonds, of Barton County, Mo., asked Director-General McAdoo's help. An order was issued closing the Missouri Pacific station in Minden and all freight is sent via the Frisco, which has to switch from this side. Result, booze in the mining camps is becoming scarce.

BEST WAY TO WASH THE HAIR

We find you can bring out the beauty of your hair to its very best advantage by washing it with Canthrox. It makes a very simple, inexpensive shampoo, which cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly of all the dandruff, dirt and excess oil, leaving a wonderfully clean, wholesome feeling. After its use you will find that the hair dries quickly and evenly, is never streaked in appearance and is always bright, soft and fluffy; so fluffy, in fact, that it looks more abundant than it is, and so soft that arranging it becomes a pleasure. Just use a teaspoonful of Canthrox, which you can get from any good druggist's, dissolve it in a cup of hot water; this makes a full cup of shampoo liquid, enough so it is easy to apply it to all the hair instead of just the top of the head.—Advertisement.

TUFTS AND PURPLE TO BATTLE

By H. W. LANIGAN.

Add another big college game to New England's list for the morrow; Tufts vs. Holy Cross. Fitton Field, Worcester, will be the scene of the combat.

Locally, gridiron rooters will be treated to two gala contests. They are Dartmouth vs. Brown, on Braves Field, and Harvard vs. Boston College, in Harvard Stadium.

Our two nifty service teams, Camp Devens and Naval Radio School, which did the honors so handsomely last Saturday, their cleanly fought, ditto well played battle having netted some $7,000 for the United War Work Campaign fund, are to perform over in Manhattan.

Camp Devens' foe will be the Garden City Aviators, an eleven which has a score of famous college warriors in its line up, while Naval Radio will collide with the Princeton Radiators. Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, and the Polo Grounds, New York, respectively, will be the scenes of the two big service games.

Harvard's service team finished its preparation for the Boston College game with a stiff practice this morning in the Stadium. The Crimson's rushline will average 170 pounds.

The left side, with McManmon at tackle and Brown at guard, is powerful, each of these hearties weighing 190 pounds. Frank Russo, at centre, is the lightest man on the line. He weighs 150 pounds.

Coleman, right guard, and Captain Daley, who plays beside him at tackle, weigh 165 and 160, respectively. Dennis and Levine, the ends, tackle the Fairbanks around 170 pounds.

Conlon, who will start the melee at quarterback, is a 140-pounder and serving with him will be Ben Hunneman 175, Ned Gehrke 173 and Bob Hoffman 155 pounds.

Good news for B. C. rooters is the Rev. Fr. Meagher's announcement that Frank Morrissey, Walter Collins, Frank Hannon, Phil Corrigan, Frank Bowler and Frank Ryan are homeward bound from Camp Lee and the prospects are bright of them playing tomorrow.

GREEN PICKED TO WIN OUT OVER BROWN

Dartmouth is the favorite over Brown in their game at Braves Field tomorrow afternoon.

Dartmouth has played through more tough games than Brown this season and its offence has been working well in recent games and for this reason the "Wah-hoo-wah" boys have been made favorites for the encounter.

One of the old-time throngs of pre-war days is expected to turn out of the engagement, as interest in sports of all sorts has quickened since the signing of the armistice.

Tonight at the Hotel Bellevue a rousing smoker will tune up the Dartmouth cohorts for the coming fray and the presence of the twenty-nine members of the squad will add to the enjoyment of the occasion.

Forecasts give Dartmouth a backfield bulge, but Brown has a pair of exceptional ends, including the sensational "Josh" Weeks, and the Little Rhody rushline will tip the scales at an average of 172 pounds, five more to the men than the Green forwards.

It will be the first time in the history of the New England rivals that the students have been togged out in khaki and both institutions will have bands of rooters in the big grandstand who are members of S. A. T. C. units.

CORBETT'S CORNER

John L. Sullivan was another famous fighter frequently guilty of ring carelessness. The mighty Sullivan believed so implicitly in his own fighting ability that he never made a real effort to train for any of his contests with the exception of those few that involved the probable loss of his title.

John L. had several narrow escapes during his fighting career. And among those was his contest with Patsy Cardiff of Peoria, Ill., who was known then as "The Peoria Giant."

Cardiff, in fine shape, rushed Sullivan with the bang of the first gong and kept after John L. mercilessly through every one of the six rounds of fighting.

Sullivan was in bad shape and just as it seemed that Cardiff had John L. on the verge of a knockout, the friends of John L. stopped the fight, claiming that Sullivan had broken a wrist.

HOW CORBETT BEAT McGOVERN.

Another case where ring carelessness lost a fight for a man—and resulted in his death—was the Luther McCarthy-Arthur Pelkey fight in Calgary, Alberta.

If Terry McGovern had had a little more respect for the slugging powers of Young Corbett, it is unlikely that the great Brooklyn warrior would have gone down to the sensational defeat in Hartford, Ct., in 1901.

McGovern, flushed by victories over George Dixon, Pedlar Palmer, Frank Erne and others, had grown to believe that no man could stand up for ten rounds before his furious onslaughts.

So when Young Corbett, a comparative "unknown," sought a match with McGovern, Terry eagerly signed articles—and you know the result.

HOW MILLER BEAT JESS.

Jess Willard was another who narrowly escaped obliteration from the pugilistic map because of carelessness—and because he held a certain foe in contempt.

When Willard landed out in San Francisco he was matched with Charlie Miller, a graduate street car motorman.

Jess decided that there wasn't any use of training to fight such a joke warrior as Miller was pictured to be.

When the two men climbed into the ring on June 27, 1913, Willard quickly became aware of the fact that he had pulled "a boner" in not training.

Miller set a pace so fast and furious that he wore out Jess in three or four rounds and it was all that Jess could do to stave off defeat until the end of the limited contest.

Not so long ago a youngster, aspiring for ring prominence, asked for advice and among other things, I said to him:

"Regard every man that you are matched to fight as the champion of champions."

SYRACUSE easily defeated Michigan, 28-4. Yost's team was able to score but once—a field goal. (Yost couldn't make 'em Hurry Up.)

OSCAR HEDLUND won the first cross-country ten-mile run held by the Brookline Gym. Mike Norris was second and Bob Fowler third. (Three classy runners, believe me.)

* * *

YOUNG of Cornell won the intercollegiate cross-country run at Princeton. Dull of Michigan finished second and Jacques of Harvard was third.

* * *

WALTHAM High had a walk-over with Everett High, winning 21-0. The Everett team was built almost entirely around Brickley, but the Watch City tacklers were on his tracks at every move. Waltham was much the heavier.

* * *

LARRY CONLEY of Dorchester High was the whole works in the game against Quincy High, scoring all ten points. In the first half he scored a touchdown, and then kicked goal. In the second half Larry booted the ball over from the 35-yard line.

FITTONS BACK WITH SAME OLD LINEUP

The Fitton basketball team is out with a challenge to all strong professional fives in New England and the Middle Atlantic States as well. The Fittons will play at Sumner Hall every Thursday night. Fox, Mitchell, Kennedy, Marley and Ford, last season's five speedy performers, again form the line-up. With Jack Lawless on the sick list, games can be booked by addressing W. J. Roach, No. 79 Eutaw street, East Boston.

BOYLE HITS TOO HARD TO SUIT BILLY WOODS

Portsmouth, N. H., Nov. 22.—Phinney Boyle, Lowell, Mass., lightweight, was too good for Billy Woods and made the Manchester boy quit in the fifth round of their carded twelve-round bout at the Knickerbocker A. C. Johnny Parker of Roxbury won from Johnny Gray of Chelsea in eight rounds, and Charley Tremblay of the Marine Corps kayoed Young Genevan in the second round.

New York, Nov. 22.—Secretary-Treasurer Rubien, of the A. A. U., has been notified that Justice Bartow S. Weeks, secretary of the American Olympic Commitee, has been elected a member of the International Olympic Committee, to succeed the late Evert Jansen Wendell.

PURE BLOOD

From the blood all the solid tissues take their food and oxygen. Unless the blood is put in a healthy condition it affects the entire body. If you have dry, rough skin, pimples on the face, swollen tonsils, sore throat; if the joints become swollen and stiff; if you have catarrh and feel stuffed up; if you cannot eat right; think right or work right, don't delay, get Brown's Blood Treatment, $2 a bottle; lasts about a month. This remedy is expressly intended to drive out of the system all impurities and at the same time build up the red corpuscles and make pure, rich, healthy blood. DR. BROWN CO., 935 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa. Sold at Leggett's.

DEVENS SECOND TEAM TO PLAY NEW LONDON

Camp Devens' second team, the boys who have scrimmaged so gallantly with Jack Hoban and his all-star band, is to play the crack New London Naval Base eleven on the Somerville High grounds tomorrow afternoon. It smacks of proving a service game well worth watching.

The star of the camp machine is McClough, University of Maine's former wizard halfback. Currier, ex-University of Illinois quarter, coach of the outfit, will be at the pivotal position. Other good men in the line-up are Mulcahey, halfback, ex-Concord High captain; Anderson, former Arlington High fullback; McDonald, Press, a Holyoke boy; Grieves, tackle, and Olson, end. Both Grieves and Olson were regulars on Devens' first eleven last Fall.

The New London machine will be captained by Tom Thornton, former Somerville High pilot and fullback. He is the same old cyclonic workman of yore this Fall. As the battle will be fought on Thornton's old campus, this should help bring out the fans.

TONIGHT'S POLO League schedule: Providence at Quincy; Worcester at Lowell.

HARRY CARLSON GETS BACK IN RING TONIGHT

By RINGSIDE.

CARD AT COMMERCIAL A. C.

Main event—Sailor (Young) Sacco of East Boston vs. Harry Carlson of Brockton, twelve rounds.

Semi-final—Eddie Barcelli of Quincy vs. Young Bruno of East Boston, eight rounds.

Second preliminary—Sam Jinsky of Lawrence vs. Charley Brennan of East Boston, six rounds.

Curtain raiser—Johnny Russell of Lawrence vs. Willie Jones of the South End.

Harry Carlson and Sailor (Young) Sacco are reported to be in fine trim for their twelve-round bout at the Commercial A. C. tonight.

As there is considerable rivalry between the pair, the milling should be of the strenuous sort.

Sacco has been performing in fine style of late, winning over Johnny Donovan, clever South Boston boy, his last time out.

Carlson hasn't been very active the last few months, but reports he's as good as ever. The Brockton boy is ambitious to regain the New England lightweight title. Sacco, too, is bent on gathering in that same crown. By the way, the winner tonight will have a prety good hold on it.

Eddie Barcelli, speedy Quincy boxer, should make things hum for Young Bruno of East Boston in the semi-final.

Willie Jones of the South End and Johny Russell of Lawrence are down for one six-rounder, while Sam Jinsky of Lawrence and Charley Brennan of East Boston furnish the other short bout. Jinsky and Brennan put up a thriller last week.

TARPY IS OVER 20 AND EVERETT MUST FORFEIT

Joseph R. Tarpy, Everett High's negro end, has been declared ineligible from participating in school athletics owing to having passed his twentieth birthday. This means Everett must forfeit the Suburban League games it won from Malden High and Rindge Tech.

Wilbur J. Rockwood, headmaster of Everett High, intends writing all schools in the league, notifying them that his school regrets it has been using an ineligible player all Fall, and stands ready to take all consequences.

GARDNER WINS HOT BATTLE ON MAT

Losing the first fall didn't phaze Pinky Gardner in the least, and he came back in his wrestling match with John Kilonis at the Grand Opera House by taking the next two flops and decision. The set-to was crowded with action. Cyclone Ress and George Ventres went thirty minutes to a draw.

MATTY BALDWIN BENEFIT NETS $10,000--GOOD

The Matty Baldwin benefit at the Arena was a sparkling success. More than 7,000 boxing fans, including a host of big folks locally and a lot of old-timers, turned out; the receipts are expected to run up as high as $10,000.

Johnny Dundee, Jack Britton, Harlem Tommy Murphy, Willie Jackson, Frankie (Young) Britt, Benny Volgar, Kid Goodman, Tommy Robson, Sailor Sacco, Johnny Donovan, Dan Dowd, Terry Brooks, Barney Adair, Battling Thomas and Johnny Marto were among the ring heroes, past and present, who went on.

Major Thomas Walsh, brother of Senator-Elect David I. Walsh, and ex-Mayor Curley served as auctioneers, and sold two pictures of the gallant little Matty.

This proved one of the exciting features of the night, with Dave Posner, F. J. Kennedy, Barney Cohen, Milso Vegeo and others leading the spirited bidding.

The first of the pictures went to Mr. Kennedy for $600, while the second was finally bid in by Mr. Posner for $750.

Mr. Posner received additional cheers when it was announced that he had presented the picture to Mrs. Baldwin, widow of the former boxer.

Some vaudeville features were included in the lavish program. All in all, it was a "big night," with the committee in charge confident it will turn over fully $10,000 to the family of the late champion New England lightweight boxer.

Bernstorff Copies Tactics Used Against I. and R.

It is reported that Count von Bernstorff, former German ambassador to the United States; Dr. Walter Rathenau, long the executive head of the economic forces of the empire, and Friederich Naumann, author of "Mittel-Europa," the work that definitely stated before the war the whole plan of Pan-Germans—three notorious German junkers and leaders in the old autocratic regime—have formed a junker plot to seize control of Germany once more.

The funny part of this plot is that they are said to call themselves the "New Democratic Popular League."

It will be recalled that Von Bernstorff was the German ambassador to the United States before we declared war against his German autocracy. It looks as if Von Bernstorff might have kept in touch with the affairs in America ever since, for we do not believe that anywhere in Europe could there be found men bold enough to ORIGINATE the scheme of seizing the very name of your opponents and inviting assistance by virtue of that name. America is the place where bold and unscrupulous politics have flourished for years. Von Bernstorff and his junkers must have been apprised of the campaign tactics of the opponents of the Initiative and Referendum who called themselves champions of DEMOCRATIC REPRESENTATIVE GOVERNMENT, and were recruited from lobbyists and lieutenants of lobbyists and munitioned by contributions from those connected with our public service and manufacturing corporations.

Bernstorff and the German autocrats must have read some of those spectacular advertisements published by the opponents of the Initiative and Referendum urging the WORKINGMEN to vote against the Initiative and Referendum because it was a RICH man's scheme to control the government and the POOR man would have no chance under it at all.

Von Bernstorff must have decided that if a cause financed entirely by the big financial interests could get away in Massachusetts with arguments and an alias like that it would be worth trying in Germany.

We hope he has the same success with his junker counterrevolution that the Associated Industries of Massachusetts and their coadjutors—those directors of the public service corporations who furnished nine-tenths of the money supplied to defeat the Initiative and Referendum—had in their fight against this great democratic reform.

U. S. Work Abroad Is Done, So Bring the Boys Home

The people want the government to bring their boys home.

And it cannot be done too quickly to suit them.

Bring the boys home!

You can hear that wherever you go.

The expression is probably in a million mouths at this very moment.

We know that it is in the hearts, if not on the lips, of ten million mothers, wives, sisters, and sweethearts.

It is a natural expression.

It is also a commonsense expression.

The boys ought to come home.

There is no reason why some of them should not be on board ship today.

To be sure, the peace treaty has not been formally signed. It will not be, either, for months—probably not before the New Year.

But nobody who has sense enough to think at all thinks that the overthrown German autocracy can by any possibility revive and fight again.

And with German autocracy overthrown there is no more rightful work for our men to do in Europe.

We sent our boys over there to do a very definite job—to knock out the Kaiser and his military chiefs.

That is exactly what our boys were sent abroad to do—just that.

And they have done it.

The Kaiser is no longer German Emperor or Prussian King. He is an exile, and his rule and the hereditary rule of his ancient house are things of the past.

Autocracy has vanished from Europe, and the twelve royalties still reigning over more or less democratic nations are sitting very uneasily and unsteadily on their tottering thrones.

The toboggans are being rapidly made ready for the rest of their sacred majesties—some of whom are very good fellows, who will doubtless be glad to quit the job.

We are unable to see what further business our boys have in Europe.

We cannot see that it is any business of ours to police Germany or any other European country.

We expressly disclaimed any purpose or desire to have the slightest share in the after-the-war division of the fruits of victory.

We are to get no territory, no seaports, no cash—nothing at all.

We announced to all the world that OUR SOLE PURPOSE in sending armies to Europe was to overthrow the autocratic governments of Germany and Austria-Hungary.

Therefore we wanted no other reward than the accomplishment of that purpose.

And since we have done the job and have the only reward we asked for or will ever get, it is time we brought our boys home, stopped our ruinous war expenses and began to build up our badly burdened finances and businesses.

Let the European governments which are pocketing the gains of the war we won for them pay the cost of their own police forces.

That is the way we look at the matter, and we think we are taking the right American view.

Bring the boys home!

Let Europe settle its own political and military problems.

We are willing to help Europe with loans of money and with food and supplies. Of course we are.

But there our generosity should halt.

We do not need a single soldier in Europe, because our objects in sending soldiers to Europe HAVE BEEN ACCOMPLISHED IN FULL, and there is absolutely no AMERICAN reason for any further military operations or any further occupation by American armies of European soil.

Bring the boys home!

Justice for Logan

The AMERICAN does not pretend to know the facts concerning Colonel Logan's removal from his command. But it does know that Colonel Logan commanded his regiment when it went to the Mexican border and when under his command it was considered the best regiment, including, we believe, even the regular regiments on the border.

We know that Colonel Logan headed his regiment when it was the first to arrive in France; that he headed his regiment when it was the first to arrive in the trenches; that he headed his regiment throughout the war, during all the fighting, and that his removal occurred after the fighting was practically over.

Now it may be that something occurred which justified his removal. There are always two sides to a question, of course. But his friends, and they include all of Massachusetts, are entitled to know why he was removed at this late day. The presumptions appear to be all in his favor.

Let us hope that justice, if it has not been given to Colonel Logan, WILL be given him in full measure. As his character and ability are known to the AMERICAN it will be most astonishing indeed if it turns out that he has been humiliated, if indeed he has, through any fault of his own.

COW AND COWED

By Morton Birge

(Modern dairymen say that women get along better with cows than men do.—News Item.)

IT seems that gentle woman is superior to man
In managing a mooley cow on scientific plan.
The dairymen themselves admit that woman's winning way
Goes further with a cow than aught a man can do or say.

A man may yelp with lordly scorn: "A cow's a stupid beast,
A woman should be able to direct a cow at least."
Comes woman's answer: "Be it so. If cows are stupid, then
That may explain the ease with which the women boss the men."

THIS POOR LITTLE BRIDE'S WOES

By Winifred Black

THE little bride is terribly worried—and I don't blame her a bit.

She isn't really a bride; she's been married for three years, but she's so young and so rosy and so blue-eyed and so trusting, and so desperately in love with her husband, and so crazy about her new house, and so determined to have everything just exactly right in it, and so desperately in earnest over the table linen, and so zealous about the monograms on the towels, and so reckless in the matter of desserts as long as He is fond of sweets, that we all call her the bride. She knows it, and she likes it.

Husband knows it, too—but I don't think he likes it—quite so well.

He's a sensitive young man, who rather fancies himself, and he is not particularly quick to see a joke; in fact, jokes do not interest him in general, and not at all if they are about him.

And he thinks the bride is just a little bit too bridey.

I've noticed this for some time, but I thought it was just in public that he pretended to be a bit bored by the bride's all too evident infatuation.

But, now, the bride has told me the awful secret.

The other day the bridegroom—yes, I shall call him that out of spite, because I know it makes him cross, and I can't help liking to do that once in a while, somehow. Do you know anyone who affects you in that way? You do, a near relative or an in-law? And what is it that makes you—but there, we must get back to the bridegroom—and the bride.

All About a Kiss

The bride is worried because two days last week the bridegroom went downtown without kissing her goodby, and when she cried about it he laughed. And the next day when he started out of the door he asked her if she wanted him to kiss her, and then the little bride's house of cards fell tumbling to the floor, and her heart broke and the sun set and the moon would never, never rise again, and she had a sick headache and went to bed and wouldn't see her own mother when she ran in to see how the pear preserves had turned out.

And dinner was a failure, and the pears burned, and the bridegroom never noticed that her eyes were red and read the paper all the evening, and called some man up on the telephone and talked for ten or fifteen minutes and never told her who he was talking to or what it was all about, and the little bride feels that their marriage is all a hideous mistake.

What a stupid creature the bridegroom is! I wonder if he is as lacking in tact with the people he meets in business as he is with his own wife.

But—When She's a Bride

But when Mary is a bride, it's different, hideously, terribly, confusingly different.

Mary doesn't know a thing about John; she's studying him and watching him, and every little thing he does means something of terrific importance to her.

John doesn't know a thing about Mary either, and every time she's foolish or inconsistent or oversentimental he wonders what he has let himself in for—and then he asks her if she wants him to kiss her, and wonders why she acts as if he had set fire to the house and burnt up all the wedding presents and snatched the precious ring off her finger and thrown it into the fire.

FINDS REAL LOVE IN STAGE PLAY

It is not often that a make-believe hero can arouse sentiments of love in the woman playing opposite him. The grease paint and other stage accessories take care of that. However, Mary Nash and her "leading man" had an unusual experience, reading in their stage lines the very thoughts they held in their own hearts for each other. How their romance developed is described in a special article in the next

How Much for the Soul? Don't Marry the Old Men. A Book and a Fortune. Postoffice "Socialism."

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1918.

Six lines tell you that Andrew D. White is dead. His will devotes five hundred thousand dollars to education at Cornell University.

Everybody prints something about the five hundred thousand dollars, nothing said about a gift worth a hundred times five hundred thousand dollars, left by Andrew White to all the people.

That gift is his book on the conflict between science and theology in Christendom.

There is education in that one book by Dr. White worth to the intelligent young American, who knows what is worth while, more than money.

To read the book, reviewing the struggles of men to free themselves from superstition, the strange things that they believed, and their complicated psychical and mental savagery, is to realize that the human race is still a barbarous infant, and, on the whole, doing fairly well.

Mr. Burleson, Postmaster-General, combines the Postal and Western Union telegraph services.

You can see at a glance what wild disordered "socialism" that is. People that pay for telegraph service need no longer support two separate telegraph presidents, two sets of vice-presidents and executive officers, separate and conflicting telegraph wires, conflicting and competing telegraph offices side by side in the big cities.

If anybody should suggest two postoffice systems, with rival postoffices, rival sets of letter carriers and rival postmasters, the country would laugh.

Yet private ownership will solemnly assert that it is a bad idea to combine the telegraph systems under public control. And many geese will believe it.

General Swift, returned from France, says the American soldiers sent this message: "Tell the girls to wait until we get home and not to marry the old men."

It is sad to see May and December married, even when December is "pretty well fixed." Scientists, however, will tell you that civilization improved because, in the constant warfare of past centuries many young women married older men—the young men being all killed off.

Young women realize their duty to the race, and would marry men older if they could not get a young one. The older men, past the days of fighting and violence, undoubtedly became fathers of sons a little more peaceful than would have been the sons of younger men. Thus, our ancestors, who all had protruding lower jaws and big teeth, gradually became gentler, content to go into business instead of the army.

Fortunately the young Americans, with few exceptions, will come home. The girls will wait, as General Swift's message suggests. And the young men, tenderly cared for by the Y. M. C. A., Red Cross, Knights of Columbus, Jewish Welfare Board, the Salvation Army doughnut cookers, and all the merciful agencies, ought to be quite gentle when they return and become fathers of gentle children—a thing to be desired.

What is the value of the soul, what importance should a man attach to it, compared with other things? Judge Landis, who imposed the big fine that the Standard Oil Company didn't pay, sheds light on the question. A reverend gentleman named Girder and some of his congregation testified that if their own daughter were attacked by a German soldier they would not kill the soldier, because "that would imperil their souls." The judge, in vigorous words, rewrote the usually accepted view: "Take them out of the courtroom," he shouted. "These men hold their measly little shrivelled souls of more importance than they do the honor of their mother, wife or daughter."

In the Bible it reads: "For what is a man profited if he shall gain the whole world and lose his soul?"

Judge Landis, filled with indignation [illegible] credit rewrites it this way: "What is a man profited if he saves his measly little shrivelled soul and loses his daughter?"

It has been taught that the business of man is to save his soul, and the devil take the [illegible]

In former days the man, dying, asked himself how he could invest his money so as to buy eternal happiness. Now it has become the fashion to think less about what Mr. Landis calls "the measly little shrivelled soul" and more about universities and other ways of promoting happiness on earth. It is a good description by a good judge. Modern business life is calculated to produce a soul both shrivelled and measly.
